Ernest Hemingway's modernist short fiction and its bounds to modern philosophy Laura Kossack, 2013-05-21 Seminar paper from the year 2012 in the subject American Studies Literature grade 1.0 University of Würzburg Philosophisches Institut 1 course Modernism Amerikanistik language English abstract There is nothing to writing All you do is sit down at a typewriter and bleed 1 This quote of Ernest Hemingway already is a portent of what his writing is about It is personal so very personal that he even uses the metaphor of his own blood for describing it Deep in meaning it emerged out of his inner life and was brought to paper just like that And his style is reflecting this perfectly it is plain and easily readable with a much broader and more complex meaning underneath the surface However before bleeding one had usually got hurt for there must be a wound This wound can be seen as the background of his writings namely the Modernist era with its fundamental uncertainty of the individual its threat of the First World War its new theories in psychology and its complex philosophical basis This work is concerned with how Hemingway adapted to this time and its changes and how he was influenced by the contemporary philosophy all in all with the ways in which Hemingway is seen as a Modernist author The Works John Howe, 1835

Beyond Grief and Nothing Joseph Dewey, 2006 In the closing decade of the twentieth century Don DeLillo emerged from the privileged status of a writer's writer to become by any measure productivity influence scope gravitas the dominant novelist of fin de millennium America Beginning in 1982 with The Names and continuing with White Noise and Underworld DeLillo defined himself as a provocative articulate anatomist of American culture Dewey offers an astute assessment of this daunting yet important writer's four decade cultural critique Dewey finds DeLillo's concerns to be organized around three rubrics that mark the writer's own creative evolution the love of the street the embrace of the word and the celebration of the soul Dewey takes the reader through the novelist's hip avant garde satires of the mid 1960s his dense interrogations of the power of language and the spell of narrative in the 1980s and 1990s and his recent efforts to transcend the immediate Dewey explores DeLillo's fascination with Eastern philosophies interest in Native American traditions passion for jazz and deep roots in Catholicism Fin-de-Siècle Splendor Dewei Wang, 1997 The reigning view of literary historians has been that the May Fourth movement of 1919 marks the division between the traditional and the modern in Chinese literature This book argues that signs of reform and innovation can be discerned long before May Fourth and that as China entered the arena of modern international history in the late Qing it was already developing its own complex matrix of incipient modernities It demonstrates that late Qing fiction nurtured a creative innovative poetics one that was spurned by the reformers of the May Fourth generation in favor of Western style realism The author recognizes that a full account of modern Chinese fiction needs to ask why so many genres styles themes and figures found in late imperial fiction were repressed by modern Chinese literary discourse He focuses on four genres of late Qing fiction that have been either rudely dismissed in pejorative terms or simply ignored depravity romances court case and chivalric cycles grotesque exposés and scientific fantasies The author shows that in spite of the realist orthodoxy that has dominated Chinese literature since the May Fourth movement these unwelcome genres have continually found their way back into mainstream discourse their influence being increasingly evident in recent decades This first comprehensive study of late Qing fiction discusses more than sixty works at least half of which have rarely or never been dealt with by Western or Chinese scholars Richly informed by contemporary literary theory this book constitutes a polemical rethinking of the nature of Chinese literary and cultural modernity Nothing to Say
