The Oxford Handbook of Prehistoric Oceania Terry L. Hunt, Ethan E. Cochrane, 2018-04-03 Oceania was the last region on earth to be permanently inhabited with the final settlers reaching Aotearoa New Zealand approximately AD 1300. This is about the same time that related Polynesian populations began erecting Easter Island's gigantic statues, farming the valley slopes of Tahiti and similar islands, and moving finely made basalt tools over several thousand kilometers of open ocean between Hawaii, the Marquesas, the Cook Islands, and archipelagos in between. The remarkable prehistory of Polynesia is one chapter of Oceania's human story. Almost 50,000 years prior, people entered Oceania for the first time, arriving in New Guinea and its northern offshore islands, shortly thereafter a biogeographic region labelled Near Oceania, and including parts of Melanesia. Near Oceania saw the independent development of agriculture and has a complex history, resulting in the greatest linguistic diversity in the world. Beginning 1000 BC, after millennia of gradually accelerating cultural change in Near Oceania, some groups sailed east from this space of inter-visible islands and entered Remote Oceania, rapidly colonizing the widely separated archipelagos from Vanuatu to Samoa, with purposeful return voyages and carrying an intricately decorated pottery called Lapita. From this common cultural foundation, these populations developed separate but occasionally connected cultural traditions over the next 3000 years. Western Micronesia, the archipelagos of Palau, Guam, and the Marianas, was also colonized around 1500 BC by canoes arriving from the west, beginning equally long sequences of increasingly complex social formations, exchange relationships, and monumental constructions. All of these topics and others are presented in The Oxford Handbook of Prehistoric Oceania, written by Oceania's leading archaeologists and allied researchers. Chapters describe the cultural sequences of the region's major island groups, provide the most recent explanations for diversity and change in Oceanic prehistory, and lay the foundation for the next generation of research.

A Global History of Convicts and Penal Colonies Clare Anderson, 2018-05-17. This book is available as open access through the Bloomsbury Open Access programme and is available on www.bloomsburycollections.com. It is funded by the University of Leicester. Between 1415, when the Portuguese first used convicts for colonization purposes in the North African enclave of Ceuta, to the 1960s and the dissolution of Stalin's gulags, global powers including the Spanish, Dutch, Portuguese, British, Russians, Chinese, and Japanese transported millions of convicts to forts, penal settlements, and penal colonies all over the world. A Global History of Convicts and Penal Colonies builds on specific regional archives and literatures to write the first global history of penal transportation. The essays explore the idea of penal transportation as an engine of global change, in which political repression and forced labour combined to produce long-term impacts on economy, society, and identity. They investigate the varied and interconnected routes convicts took to penal sites across the world and the relationship of these convict flows to other forms of punishment, unfree labour, military service, and indigenous incarceration. They also explore the lived worlds of convicts, including work, culture, religion, and intimacy, and convict experience and agency.

The Indigénat and France's Empire in New Caledonia Isabelle Merle, Adrian Muckle, 2022-10-19. This book provides a long history of France's infamous indigénat regime, from its origins in Algeria to its contested practices and legacies in France's South Pacific territory of New Caledonia.

The term indig nat is synonymous throughout the francophone world with the rigours and injustices of the colonial era under French rule The indig nat regime or Native Code governed the lives of peoples classified as French native subjects in colonies as diverse as Algeria West Africa Madagascar Indochina and New Caledonia In New Caledonia it was introduced by decree in 1887 and remained in force until Kanak New Caledonia s indigenous people obtained citizenship in 1946 Among the colonial tools and legal mechanisms associated with France s colonial empire it is the one that has had the greatest impact on the memory of the colonized Focussing on New Caledonia the last remaining part of overseas France to have experienced the full force of the indig nat this book illustrates the way that certain measures were translated into colonial practices and sheds light on the tensions involved in the making of France as both a nation and a colonial empire The first book to provide a comprehensive history of the indig nat regime explaining how it first came into being and survived up until 1946 despite its constant denunciation this is an important contribution to French Imperial History and Pacific History Empire of Love Matt K. Matsuda,2005-01-20 In this broad ranging survey of Paris Tahiti Indochina Japan New Caledonia and the South Pacific generally Matt Matsuda illustrates the fascinating interplay that shaped the imaginations of both colonizer and colonized Drawing on a wealth of primary sources Matsuda describes the constitution of a French Pacific through the eyes of Tahitian monarchs Kanak warriors French politicians and prisoners Asian revolutionaries and Central American laborers among others He argues that French imperialism in the Pacific both real and imagined was registered most forcefully in languages of desire and love for lost islands promised wealth and riches carnal and spiritual pleasures and political affinities Exploring the conflicting engagements with love for and against the empire in the Pacific this book is an imaginative and ground breaking work in global imperial and colonial histories as well as Pacific histories Le benthos des fonds meubles des lagons de Nouvelle-Calédonie Bertrand Richer de Forges,1997 Design and the Vernacular Paul Memmott,John Ting,Tim O'Rourke,Marcel Vellinga,2023-11-16 Design and the Vernacular explores the intersection between vernacular architecture local cultures and modernity and globalization focussing on the vast and diverse global region of Australasia and Oceania The relevance and role of vernacular architecture in contemporary urban planning and architectural design are examined in the context of rapid political economic technological social and environmental changes including globalization exchanges of people finance material culture and digital technologies Sixteen chapters by architects designers and theorists including Indigenous writers explore key questions about the agency of vernacular architecture in shaping contemporary building and design practice These questions include How have Indigenous building traditions shaped modern building practices What can the study of vernacular architecture contribute to debates about sustainable development And how has vernacular architecture been used to argue for postcolonial modernisation and nation building and what has been the effect on heritage and conservation Such questions provide valuable case studies and lessons for architecture in other global regions and challenge assumptions about vernacular architecture being anachronistic and static instead demonstrating how it can shape contemporary architecture nation building and cultural identities
