Romance and Exemplarity in Post-war Spanish Women's Narratives Nino Kebabze, 2009 A reading of women's post war literary representations in terms of exemplarity The effects of General Francisco Franco's authoritarian rule 1939-1975 on the production and reception of cultural texts can be gauged by the silence that now surrounds them This is especially true of works which enjoyed considerable popularity when first published Most of the novels in question belong to the sentimental genre known as novela rosa whose authors mostly women and heroines Academe has consistently treated as literary pariahs This volume represents the first serious effort to question the categories used to assess the value and meaning of texts previously presumed to be devoid of both It does so by bringing to the fore the operative premise of Francoist cultural politics wherein fictional works have the power to mould individual character and conduct Narratives by Luisa Mar a Linares Concha Linares Becerra Carmen de Icaza and Mar a Mercedes Ortoll are thus examined in terms of the effects that they were expected to have on their readers and the constraints that such expectations placed on the works production and reception The result is a paradox while the study of women's bestselling novels is by definition a study of the constraints that shape them careful reading reveals the limitations of those selfsame constraints NINO KEBADZE is an Assistant Professor in the Hispanic Studies Department of the University of Massachusetts Boston

Narreme in the Medieval Romance Epic Eugene Dorfman,1969-12-15 In this study Professor Dorfman applies the methods of modern linguistics to literary analysis Literature may be described as the structured use of language the modern linguistic analyzes language in a search for the minimal units of sound and form phoneme and morpheme and determines the combinations by which they can communicate meaning The author here searches for a minimal structural unit in the literary narrative analogous to the phoneme and the morpheme in language structure Based on a detailed analysis of the Roland and the Cid and twelve additional Romance narratives Professor Dorfman s argument is that the structure of the medieval Romance epics may be analyzed into functional units which he calls narremes He divides a narrative into two types of structure the superstructure and the substructure A narrative by definition is a series of incidents All the incidents in the narrative taken as written form the superstructure Analysis however shows that many of the incidents may be abstracted from the narrative without deflecting the story line On the other hand other incidents reveal themselves as organically linked with each other so they cannot be omitted without destroying the story line These selected incidents are the narremes which make up the substructure of the narrative This method of analysis produces so interesting and surprising results results which make an important advance in research in linguistics and Romance literature Eugene Dorfman as an orthodox structuralist has focused strictly on the formal descriptions of the narratives but his analysis leads into the great traditional problems of literary history and in particular poses anew the problem of the origins of the epic
