It is not sufficient to simply use the word "preventing" to describe a behavior that prevents a prohibited action from occurring. For example, the phrase "preventing the use of a computer" is not sufficient to describe a behavior that prevents the use of a computer.

- Q. Now, the fact that the defendant was not interviewed by the FBI and placed under FBI police surveillance, that fact alone does not indicate whether or not there is a causal effect between the defendant and the fact that he is in custody. That fact is consistent with police practice in a jurisdiction where a witness identification officer is present.
