Controversies Within the Scientific Revolution Marcelo Dascal, Victor D. Boantza, 2011 From the beginning of the Scientific Revolution around the late sixteenth century to its final crystallization in the early eighteenth century hardly an observational result an experimental technique a theory a mathematical proof a methodological principle or the award of recognition and reputation remained unquestioned for long The essays collected in this book examine the rich texture of debates that comprised the Scientific Revolution from which the modern conception of science emerged Were controversies marginal episodes restricted to certain fields or were they the rule in the majority of scientific domains To what extent did scientific controversies share a typical pattern which distinguished them from debates in other fields Answers to these historical and philosophical questions are sought through a close attention to specific controversies within and across the changing scientific disciplines as well as across the borders of the natural and the human sciences philosophy theology and technology

Social Exclusion and the Way Out Adrian Bonner, 2007-03-13 Social Exclusion and the Way Out focuses on the key issues which promote an understanding of the development of integrative models of care and resettlement Consideration is given to the role of statutory and non statutory agencies in facilitating the development of the individual to become included in the community Practical insights into the management and development of opportunities for individuals draws on best practice from examples of vulnerable groups

Ideas, Evidence, and Method Graciela Teresa De Pierris, 2015 Graciela De Pierris presents a novel interpretation of the relationship between skepticism and naturalism in Hume's epistemology and a new appraisal of Hume's place within early modern thought Whereas a dominant trend in recent Hume scholarship maintains that there are no skeptical arguments concerning causation and induction in Book I Part III of the Treatise Graciela De Pierris presents a detailed reading of the skeptical argument she finds there and how this argument initiates a train of skeptical reasoning that begins in Part III and culminates in Part IV This reasoning is framed by Hume's version of the modern theory of ideas developed by Descartes and Locke The skeptical implications of this theory however do not arise as in traditional interpretations of Hume's skepticism from the veil of perception They arise from Hume's elaboration of a presentational phenomenological model of ultimate evidence according to which there is always a justificatory gap between what is or has been immediately presented to the mind and any ideas that go beyond it This happens paradigmatically in the causal inductive inference and as De Pierris argues in demonstrative inference as well Yet in spite of his firm commitment to radical skepticism Hume also accepts the naturalistic standpoint of science and common life and he does so on the novel interpretation presented here because of an equally firm commitment to Newtonian science in general and the Newtonian inductive method in particular Hume defends the Newtonian method against the mechanical philosophy while simultaneously rejecting all attempts including those of the Newtonians to find a place for the supernatural within our understanding of nature
