IS INFORMATION ABOUT THE ACCOUNTANT'S COMPETENCE, EXPERIENCE, AND OTHER RELEVANT INFORMATION AVAILABLE?

Information and Experience

Accountant's competence is a substantially overriding consideration. The accountant was requested to identify whether the basic qualifications of education, and any continuing education, and related designations are consistent with current standards set by the Institute. The accountant also is to identify the character of the work upon which being based, based on the professional standards and whether the program the accountant will be engaged in is consistent with the standards for that engagement, including, notably, preparation of the financial statements, understanding the nature and extent of the presentation and whether such information is not subject to an external audit and whether the accountant has been an assistant who reports the results directly to the client (not subject) and the requested treatment for the specific report. The accountant's primary responsibility is to the client, including the client's management and the client's board of directors.

Accountant's information about the basic generally accepted accounting principles and practices is the primary basis for the audit. The audit of the client's accounts and their quality and the accountant's own internal controls are subject to audit and to the general ledger. Information about the quality of the audit is the foundation for the general ledger. Information about the quality of the audit is the foundation for the general ledger.
