Students will be able to identify the different types of metamorphic rocks and their characteristics. They will also be able to explain the process of metamorphism and the factors that influence it.

Metamorphic Rocks

Metamorphic rocks are formed from pre-existing rocks (igneous, sedimentary, or metamorphic) through the process of metamorphism. This process involves changes in temperature, pressure, and chemical environment, which alter the mineral composition and texture of the original rock.

Metamorphic rocks are classified based on their parent rock (protolith) and the conditions of metamorphism. The main types of metamorphic rocks are:

- Sedimentary Metamorphic Rocks: These rocks are formed from sedimentary rocks. Examples include shale, sandstone, and limestone.
- Igneous Metamorphic Rocks: These rocks are formed from igneous rocks. Examples include granite, diorite, and gabbro.
- Metamorphic Rocks: These rocks are formed from metamorphic rocks. Examples include schist, gneiss, and amphibolite.
