Testing and Assessment in Translation and Interpreting Studies Claudia V. Angelelli, Holly E. Jacobson, 2009

Testing and Assessment in Translation and Interpreting Studies examines issues of measurement that are essential to translation and interpreting. Conceptualizing testing both as a process and a product, the collection of papers explores these issues across languages and settings including university classrooms, research projects, the private sector, and professional associations. The authors have approached their chapters from different perspectives using a variety of methods, some focusing on very specific variables and others providing a much broader overview of the issues at hand. Chapters range from a discussion of the measurement of text cohesion in translation, the measurement of interactional competence in interpreting, the use of a particular scale to measure interpreters' renditions, to the application of a specific approach to grading or general program assessment, such as interpreter or translator certification at the national level or program admissions processes. These studies point to the need for greater integration of research and practice in the specific area of testing and assessment and are a welcome addition to the field. Assessing legal interpreter quality through testing and certification: The Qualitas Project Cynthia Giambruno, 2014

Respect for the procedural rights of any individual involved in police or judicial matters is a basic tenet of a modern and sound system of justice. Providing legal interpreting services to suspects, defendants, victims, and witnesses who are not proficient in the language in which legal matters are being conducted is a broadly accepted practice throughout the EU. However, it is only recently that emphasis has been placed on the quality of the services provided. EU Directive 2010/64/EU through its mandate for quality in legal interpreter and translating services has provided the impetus needed to reexamine current practices and work towards common standards and practices across the EU that would enhance mutual trust and allow for reciprocity and the sharing of expertise. This volume reflects the deliberations of a panel of experts from the fields of legal interpreting, testing theory, and public policy who agree that the most effective means of ensuring quality is through testing and certification. It addresses issues related to the assessment of the skill sets and knowledge required to ensure high quality legal interpreting and offers practical guidance and advice on the design and administration of a valid and reliable certification process. Quantitative Research Methods in Translation and Interpreting Studies

Medical Interpreting and Cross-cultural Communication Claudia V. Angelelli, 2004-10-21 When healthcare providers and patients do not speak the same language, medical interpreters are called in to help. In this book, the first ever ethnographic study of a bilingual hospital, Claudia Angelelli explores the role of medical interpreters, drawing on data from over 300 medical encounters and interviewing the interpreters themselves about the people for whom they interpret, their challenges and how they characterize their role. Traditionally, the interpreter has been viewed as a language conduit with little power over the medical encounter or the relationship between patient and provider. This book presents an alternative view, considering the interpreter's agency and contextualizing the practice within an institution that is part of a larger society. Bringing together literature from social theory, social psychology and linguistic anthropology, this book will be welcomed by anyone who wants to discover the intricacies of medical interpreting firsthand, particularly researchers, communication specialists, policy makers and practitioners.

Form, Meaning and Function in Collocation Haoda Feng,2020-04-03 The issue of differences between translational language and native speaker language has become a topic of increasing interest in linguistics and Translation Studies TS One of the primary tasks in this research area is to employ a corpus approach and analyse collocations with authentic language data by comparing comparable corpora consisting of translated and native speaker texts Collocation in linguistics and TS refers to the relationship of co occurrence between lexical items The book shows that examining the use of collocations constitutes an integral part in assessing the naturalness of second language L2 use and therefore can be a valid measure to make a distinction between translational language and native speaker language Nevertheless the role of collocation has not been given enough attention or discussed systematically in TS and to date there are hardly any translation theorists who have clarified the mechanism of collocation in TS by which translators acquire receptive and productive knowledge of collocations in their L2 In addition previous research in this area is largely confined to Indo European languages resulting in a lack of empirical evidence involving Asian languages This book therefore attempts to
