 original research in a particular subject area Specially commissioned chapters from leading figures in the discipline give critical examinations of the progress and direction of debates as well as a foundation for future research Oxford Handbooks provide scholars and graduate students with compelling new perspectives upon a wide range of subjects in the humanities social sciences and sciences The adage Those who do not learn from history are doomed to repeat it is a powerful one for parents teachers and other professionals involved with or interested in deaf individuals or the Deaf community Myths grown from ignorance have long dogged the field and faulty assumptions and overgeneralizations have persisted despite contrary evidence A study of the history of deaf education reveals patterns that have affected educational policy and legislation for deaf people around the world these patterns are related to several themes critical to the chapters of this volume One such theme is the importance of parental involvement in raising and educating deaf children Another relates to how Deaf people have taken an increasingly greater role in influencing their own futures and places in society In published histories we see the longstanding conflicts through the centuries that pertain to sign language and spoken communication philosophies as well as the contributions of the individuals who advocated alternative strategies for teaching deaf children More recently investigators have recognized the need for a diverse approach to language and language learning Advances in technology cognitive science linguistics and the social sciences have alternately led and followed changes in theory and practice resulting in a changing landscape for deaf and hard of hearing individuals and those connected to them This second volume of the The Oxford Handbook of Deaf Studies Language and Education 2003 picks up where that first landmark volume left off describing those advances and offering readers the opportunity to understand the current status of research in the field
