Greening the South African Economy Mark Swilling, Josephine Kaviti Musango, Jeremy Wakeford, 2016-02-23 The depletion of South Africa's and in some cases the world's natural resources and the degradation of environmental sinks including the atmosphere lakes and rivers and land are continuing at such a rate that natural resource prices are climbing and many critical ecosystem services that underpin human welfare are increasingly threatened The concept of the green economy has gained increasing traction in South African policy discourses over the past few years However in much of this discourse it is viewed in a piecemeal way as one part or sector of the economy e.g. an industrial sector dealing with manufacture and installation of renewable energy technologies and energy efficient equipment and appliances In the view of the authors greening the South African economy requires an application of sustainability principles and practices across the full range of primary secondary and tertiary sectors of the economy in an integrated manner The aim of this book is therefore to apply principles of sustainability and green economics to the entire South African socio-economic system and its major elements in an integrated and comprehensive manner

Wrecking Ball Stu Woolman, 2021-04-29 Wrecking Ball explores in an unprecedented manner a decalogue of wicked problems that confronts humanity Nuclear proliferation climate change pandemics permanent technological unemployment Orwellian public and private surveillance social media that distorts reality cyberwarfare the fragmentation of democracies the inability of nations to cabin private power the failure of multinational institutions to promote collaboration and the deepening of autocratic rule in countries that have never known anything but extractive institutions Collectively or even severally these wicked problems constitute crises that could end civilisation Does this list frighten you or do you blithely assume that tomorrow will be just like yesterday Wrecking Ball shows that without an inclusive system of global governance the collective action required to solve those wicked problems falls beyond the remit of the world s 20 inclusive democracies 50 flawed democracies and 130 extractive elitist autocracies Flawed democracies and autocracies that already struggle to produce goods necessary for their own citizens to flourish are simply incapable of committing to international arrangements that address the existential threats posed by the decalogue of wicked problems This then is our children s inheritance Dystopias far far worse than the polities that we ourselves have known What if anything can mitigate the harms that are our legacy Wrecking Ball offers as an answer a ground breaking analysis of South Africa s political economy It demonstrates that this country s elitist and extractive political and economic institutions not only make resolution of ongoing domestic crises unattainable likewise they make meaningful responses to wicked problems impossible Smart people think they have all the answers Without laboring under any such illusions Martin Luther King Jr eloquently opined The arc of the moral universe is long but it bends towards justice But what will happen King would acidly ask if we continue to dawdle and simply run out of time Wrecking Ball similalry operates under no such smart pretenses and undeterred and unmatched ventures into terrrains traversed by truly great political economists Smith Ricardo Marx and Keynes By knitting together what we all know to be the facts with cutting edge theory in economics sociology history and political science the book paints an unflinching portrait of where we are and where we are headed Are we ready to be honest with ourselves about the likely future of this overheated overpopulated planet Physics Briefs ,1982

e-Infrastructure and e-Services for Developing Countries Tegawendé F. Bissyandé,Gertjan van Stam,2014-08-13 This book constitutes the thoroughly refereed proceedings of the 5th International Conference on e Infrastructure and e Services for Developing Countries AFRICOMM 2013 held in Blantyre Malawi in November 2013 The 32 revised full papers presented were carefully reviewed and selected from 94 submissions The papers discuss issues and trends resent research innovation advances and on the field experiences related to e governance e infrastructure and e business with a focus on developing countries Engineering ,1937 Anatomy of a South African Karst Hydrosystem Philip J. Hobbs,Harrison Pienaar,Eddie van Wyk,Yongxin Xu,2022-08-05 This book combines the results of the research activities in the assessment of water resources environment and an integrated water resource monitoring program to support preservation efforts of the aquatic environment of the Cradle of Humankind COH World Heritage Sites A poor understanding of the surface and groundwater resources of the COH property has precipitated often alarmist reporting in the media regarding the negative impacts associated with various sources of poor quality water The most notable of these is the acid mine drainage threat to karst ecosystems and fossil sites across the property These circumstances have generated wide and considerable concern for the preservation of the UNESCO inscribed fossil sites and integrity of the water resources of the property Acid Mine

Drainage and its Governance in the Gauteng City-Region Kerry Bobbins, 2015-05-29 Acid mine drainage AMD has generated an enormous amount of media interest and public concern in the Gauteng City Region GCR over the last decade. However, it has been framed as a narrow technical concern with government action being directed towards securing the necessary engineering and processing solutions as quickly as possible to prevent decant and treat acid mine water to industrial standards. This has arguably limited the scope for full discussion and debate on the impacts of AMD particularly for the environment and this bears implications for how AMD has been managed in the GCR. Government's immediate short and long term interventions to address AMD have been set out as a straight forward solution but over time more complex environmental concerns have emerged. Becoming more evident over the last few years is that one of the main impacts of AMD will be its effect on the overall water security in the Vaal River System VRS on which the GCR relies for its supply of potable water. Limits on water abstraction from the VRS together with the increasing need to maintain the overall water quality in the system through dilution and treatment activities means that AMD is beginning to manifest as a binding constraint on economic development and a burden on society in particular via escalating costs for water consumers. Fiscal constraints are likely to see GCR residents and businesses pick up more and more of the costs associated with the treatment of AMD through the format of increased municipal tariffs. With final decisions on municipal tariffs now pending, the broader yet invisible impacts of AMD loom large. This means that the debate has moved far beyond the issue of predicted decant in each of the Witwatersrand's mining basins. Water security for the GCR and who will carry the costs associated with the long term treatment of AMD have instead taken centre stage. This paper carefully updates the historical record on AMD since the publishing of a GCRO Provocation on the issue in 2010. In doing so, it argues that the way in which AMD has been governed raises a flag around how the political economy of an issue such as AMD should be understood, publicly debated and managed. In particular, it suggests that the governance of an environmental challenge such as AMD is not only about finding a technical solution. The lack of platforms to ensure well informed public deliberation especially over such issues as who will pay and how must be addressed to ensure more equitable and transparent decision making. In light of the broader mine waste legacy inherited by the GCR and the strong likelihood of environmental contamination becoming more commonplace in the future, these concerns are not only limited to AMD. They will only grow in importance over time.
