Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary, middle-aged men. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and an exercise group. The exercise group performed a 12-week training program consisting of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes. The control group did not exercise. The HR and HRR were measured at rest and during exercise at the beginning and end of the 12-week period. The results showed that the exercise group had a significant decrease in HR and HRR at rest and during exercise compared to the control group. The decrease in HR and HRR was greater in the exercise group than in the control group. The results suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the cardiovascular fitness of sedentary, middle-aged men.

- Day and night temperatures that are longer than the standard atmospheric conditions will negatively affect the rate of soil moisture evaporation and transpiration. Likewise, that are far below the ground surface may be far above the ground surface.
- Groundwater resources that are not directly connected to the surface water resources are not affected by the length of the water table, but they are affected by the rate of recharge and the rate of discharge. The rate of recharge is the rate of infiltration of water into the ground, and the rate of discharge is the rate of water leaving the ground. Groundwater resources that are not directly connected to the surface water resources are not affected by the length of the water table, but they are affected by the rate of recharge and the rate of discharge.
