Sanyo Medicoool Manual:

A Manual for Primary Human Cell Culture Jan-Thorsten Schantz, Kee Woei Ng, 2004-10-14 As part of the boom in biotechnology particularly in tissue engineering primary human cell culture has become a major pillar in academic research and the biopharmaceutical industry Obtaining a viable culture from a tissue sample and maintaining it for experimental diagnostic or therapeutic purposes can be quite a challenge Based on laboratory protocols and practical experience from many years of primary cell culture this manual presents the basic steps necessary for culturing primary human cells Written by students for students the manual serves well as a practical guide to primary human cell culture The authors have left much space for notes and the design of the manual is such that it can be continuously upgraded and extended The content of this manual is by no means exhaustive Protocols for specific cell types out of over 200 different cell types in the human body were selected from major tissue groupings in the body They should serve as a foundation for individual researchers to experiment explore and establish niche protocols for their specific needs Inspired by the practical clinical checklists available to residents and trainees in medicine the authors have chosen a compact physical format that can fit into the pocket of a lab coat

Black Sea turbot Aydın, I., Küçük, E., Polat, H., Haşimoğlu, A., Altuntaş, A., 2023-06-16 In the Mediterranean and the Black Sea aquaculture plays a major role in achieving food security and can deliver many socioeconomic benefits and help to maintain or increase production of aquatic foods while ensuring wild stocks are fished within their maximum sustainable yield Given the importance of this sector and the growing demand for aquatic products it is vital that aquaculture in the region be both sustainable and productive In this regard it is necessary to promote practices supporting the sustainability of the sector and maximize the sharing of technology and information in order to give producers all the necessary tools and information on aquaculture production This manual aims to support this endeavour by presenting detailed information about the rearing practices of Black Sea turbot Scophthalmus maximus It provides an introduction into the status of the turbot aquaculture sector as well as the necessary environmental conditions for optimal production It also describes the production of live food for turbot larvae as well as the management of broodstock and the procedures for optimal larval and juvenile rearing Finally with a view to capitalizing on and promoting innovative technologies it presents recent applications of biotechnologies to turbot production
