Delayed Impact Franklin Bialystok,2000 In Delayed Impact Franklin Bialystok explores the evolution of the legacy of the Holocaust in the collective memory of the post war Canadian Jewish community He seeks to understand why the Holocaust s effect was relatively muted up to 1960 moved to the forefront with the rise of antisemitism in the 1960s and became a prominent concern and marker for Jewish ethnic identity after 1973 Bialystok begins by examining the years immediately following World War II showing that Canadian Jews were not psychologically equipped to comprehend the enormity of the Holocaust Unable to grasp the extent of the atrocities that had occurred in a world that was not theirs Canadian Jews were not prepared to empathize with the survivors and a chasm between the groups developed and widened in the next two decades He shows how the efflorescence of marginal but vicious antisemitism in Canada in the 1960s in combination with more potent antisemitic outrages internationally and the threat to Israel s existence led to an interest in the Holocaust He demonstrates that with the politicisation of the survivors and the maturation of the post war generation of Canadian Jews in the 1980s the memory of the Holocaust became a pillar of ethnic identity Combining previously unexamined documents and interviews with leaders in the Jewish community in Canada Bialystok shows how the collective memory of an epoch making event changed in reaction to historical circumstances His work enhances our understanding of immigrant adaptation and ethnic identification in a multi cultural society in the context of the post war economic and social changes in the Canadian landscape and sheds new light on the history of Canadian Jewry opening a new perspective on the effects of the Holocaust on a community in transition Franklin Bialystok is a part time lecturer in the Department of History at the University of Toronto and the University of Waterloo He has published numerous articles on the Holocaust in various journals and edited collections
