people responsible for their products in favor of outsourcing work to small companies that compete fiercely with one another. The result has been declining wages eroding benefits inadequate health and safety protections and ever widening income inequality. From the perspectives of CEOs and investors fissuring splitting off functions that were once managed internally has been phenomenally successful. Despite giving up direct control to subcontractors and franchises these large companies have figured out how to maintain the quality of brand name products and services without the cost of maintaining an expensive workforce. But from the perspective of workers this strategy has meant stagnation in wages and benefits and a lower standard of living. Weil proposes ways to modernize regulatory policies so that employers can meet their obligations to workers while allowing companies to keep the beneficial aspects of this business strategy.
