

Senior Project/Reflection Paper Guidelines

Make sure that you write your reflection paper as an essay to the readers/assessors, and not just a numbered list in response to the prompts below.

1. Describe your overall project. Summarize what was created and accomplished.
2. Explain the process you went through, highlighting the sequence of major steps and activities, along the way.
3. Describe the new skills that you have learned or improved, especially those you believe are the most helpful now or that will be helpful in the future.
4. Write about any challenges or obstacles that you met and how successful you were in overcoming them.
5. Put into your own words how your project has benefited you in terms of your personal growth.
6. Provide some specific information about how your project has connected to or benefited a career plan and how you have been involved with your project beyond your normal school day.
7. Describe any modifications you had to make to your plans as you proceeded with your project.
8. From all that you have accomplished with your project and your education, how might you apply what you have done and learned to your future?
9. How did you utilize research throughout your project? What types of sources were used?

Creating a Democratic Learning Community Susan R. Murray,1999

Toward a New Science of Educational Testing and Assessment Harold Berlak,Fred M. Newmann,Elizabeth Adams,Doug A. Archbald,Tyrell Burgess,John Raven,Thomas A. Romberg,1992-01-01 The authors of this book question the assumptions of the psychometric paradigm that underlie virtually all criterion referenced and standardized tests used in North American schools. They make a compelling case for a new science of educational testing and assessment one that shifts decision making from central administration to individual schools and communities. Harold Berlak argues that the concept of tests as scientific instruments validated by technical experts is anachronistic and self contradictory. He makes a case for a contextual paradigm an approach which assumes that consensus on educational goals and national testing programs is neither possible nor desirable. Assessment practices in a democratic society must acknowledge and affirm differences in values beliefs and material interests among individuals and groups over the purposes and practices of schooling. Teaching for Student Learning Dick Arends, Ann Kilcher, 2010-02-25 Teaching for Student Learning shows teachers how to integrate research and the wisdom of practice into their teaching emphasizing how accomplished teachers acquire and apply evidence based practices in support of student learning. Roadmap to Restructuring David T. Conley, 1993 Designed as a guide for practitioners this book draws on over 600 sources to discuss school restructuring definitions trends and issues achievements of a few select schools and implementation techniques and strategies. Two overarching indirectly stated issues pervading the reconceptualization of schooling are multiculturalism and a caring school staff. The book is organized into four parts. Part 1 Rationale and Context presents a historical context for restructuring and a summary of the current motivations for and implications of educational restructuring. Part 2 Changing Roles and Responsibilities examines the evolution of new roles for essentially all the groups that participate in public education. Part 3 Dimensions of Restructuring explores the concepts of incremental and discontinuous change and extensively discusses current school restructuring activities along 12 dimensions: learner outcomes curriculum instruction assessment learning environment technology school community relations time schedules governance teacher leadership personnel definitions and roles and working relationships. Part 4 Process of Restructuring captures the lessons being learned about the restructuring process and presents examples of strategies and techniques. Contains over 600 references. MLH. Reinventing Ourselves Barbara Leigh Smith, John McCann, 2001-01-15 Reinventing Ourselves examines the experiences and lessons from over 20 different institutions pioneering new approaches for more effective teaching and learning. Many of the colleges included in this volume began as both educational and social experiments representing new ways of thinking about educational goals curricular organization institutional governance and faculty roles and rewards. With new calls for both rethinking our approaches to teaching and learning and for reviewing the traditional boundaries within institutions and between disciplines Reinventing Ourselves offers a rich store of ideas from which to draw. Materials and Process Selection for Engineering Design Mahmoud M. Farag, 2020-12-30 Introducing a new engineering product or changing an existing model involves developing designs reaching economic decisions selecting materials choosing manufacturing processes and assessing environmental impact. These activities are interdependent and should not be performed in isolation from each other. This is because the materials and processes used in making a product can have a major influence on its design cost and performance in service This Fourth Edition of the best selling Materials and Process Selection for Engineering Design takes all of this into account and has been comprehensively revised to reflect the many advances in the fields of materials and manufacturing including Increasing use of additive manufacturing technology especially in biomedical aerospace and automotive applications Emphasizing the environmental impact of engineering products recycling and increasing use of biodegradable polymers and composites Analyzing further into weight reduction of products through design changes as well as material and process selection especially in manufacturing products such as electric cars Discussing new methods for solving multi criteria decision making problems including multi component material selection as well as concurrent and geometry dependent selection of materials and joining technology Increasing use of MATLAB by engineering students in solving problems This textbook features the following pedagogical tools New and updated practical case studies from industry A variety of suggested topics and background information for in class group work Ideas and background information for reflection papers so readers can think critically about the material they have read give their interpretation of the issues under discussion and the lessons learned and then propose a way forward Open book exercises and questions at the end of each chapter where readers are evaluated on how they use the material rather than how well they recall it in addition to the traditional review questions Includes a solutions manual and PowerPoint lecture materials for adopting professors Aimed at students in mechanical manufacturing and materials engineering as well as professionals in these fields this book provides the practical know how in order to choose the right materials and processes for development of new or enhanced products College and Career Ready David T. Conley, 2010-02-12 Giving students the tools they need to succeed in college and work College and Career Ready offers educators a blueprint for improving high school so that more students are able to excel in freshman level college courses or entry level jobs laying a solid foundation for lifelong growth and success The book is filled with detailed practical guidelines and case descriptions of what the best high schools are doing Includes clear guidelines for high school faculty to adapt their programs of instruction in the direction of enhanced college career readiness Provides practical strategies for improving students content knowledge and academic behaviors Offers examples of best practices and research based recommendations for change The book considers the impact of behavioral issues such as time management and study habits as well as academic skills on college readiness Integrating Work in Theological Education Kathleen A. Cahalan, Edward Foley, Gordon S. Mikoski, 2017-03-09 If only we could do a better job of helping students at connecting the dots theological educators commonly lament Integration often proposed as a solution to the woes of professional education for ministry would help students integrate knowledge skills spirituality and integrity When these remain disconnected incompetence ensues and the cost runs high for churches denominations and ministers themselves However we fail in thinking that integrating work is for students alone It is a multifaceted constructive process of learning that is contextual reflective and dialogical It aims toward important ends competent leaders who can guide Christian communities today It entails rhythms not stages and dynamic movement including disintegration Integrating work is learning in motion across domains and among and between persons It is social and communal born of a life of learning together for faculty staff administrators and students It is work that bridges the long standing gaps between school ministry practice and life It s a verb not a noun Here a diverse group of theological educators through descriptive case studies theological reflection and theory building offer a distinctive contribution to understanding integrating work and how best to achieve it across three domains in community curriculums and courses Bulletin - U.S. Coast Guard Academy Alumni Association United States Coast Guard Academy.
