Flame Test Mystery Lab

Investigate _____
 Hypothesis _____
 Materials _____

In this lab, you will conduct flame tests on the different metal ions. Observe the color of the flame produced when each ion is placed in the flame. The color of the flame produced when each ion is placed in the flame is different. This is because each ion has a different electron configuration. When an electron moves from a higher energy level to a lower energy level, it releases energy in the form of light. This is called a flame test.

Procedure

1. Prepare the solutions of the different metal ions in the test tubes.
2. Dip the wire loop into the solution and place it in the flame. Observe the color of the flame.
3. Repeat the procedure for each ion.
4. Record the color of the flame for each ion.
5. Compare the results of your experiment with the known results.
6. Identify the metal ion in each solution.

Conclusion

1. Safety: Always wear your safety goggles when working with chemicals. Do not touch the chemicals or the test tubes.
2. Flame Test: The flame test is a simple way to identify the metal ions in a solution. The color of the flame produced when each ion is placed in the flame is different. This is because each ion has a different electron configuration. When an electron moves from a higher energy level to a lower energy level, it releases energy in the form of light. This is called a flame test.

When an electron moves from a higher energy level to a lower energy level, it releases energy in the form of light. This is called a flame test.
