Training the Future Child Health Care Workforce to Improve the Behavioral Health of Children, Youth, and Families

National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Health and Medicine Division, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Board on Children, Youth, and Families, Forum on Promoting Children's Cognitive, Affective, and Behavioral Health, 2017-11-30 Increasing numbers of evidence based interventions have proven effective in preventing and treating behavioral disorders in children However the adoption of these interventions in the health care system and other systems that affect the lives of children has been slow Moreover with few exceptions current training in many fields that involve the behavioral health of children falls short of meeting the needs that exist In general this training fails to recognize that behavioral health disorders are among the largest challenges in child health and that changing cognitive affective and behavioral health outcomes for children will require new and more integrated forms of care at a population level in the United States To examine the need for workforce development across the range of health care professions working with children and families as well as to identify innovative training models and levers to enhance training the Forum on Promoting Children s Cognitive Affective and Behavioral Health held a workshop in November 2016 Workshop panelists and participants discussed the needs for workforce development across the range of health care professions working with children youth and families and identified innovative training models and levers for change to enhance training This publication summarizes the presentations and discussions from the workshop
