

Activity 10.1

Reading material on our website on genetic variation in gametes completes part 1 of the following questions. Respondents must demonstrate an understanding of the concepts discussed in the lecture.

1. Match each of the following changes in chromosome structure to its definition:

☒ A. Crossing

☐ B. Duplication

☐ C. Inversion

☐ D. Translocation

☐ E. as location of a chromosome is changed

☐ F. as pieces of chromosomes is deleted

☐ G. as segments of non-homologous chromosomes are exchanged; different, non-homologous chromosomes

☐ H. as position of a chromosome segment has or more times in a row

2. How many genetically different gametes can be produced from a diploid cell with four chromosomes pairs? Explain your answer.

From the number of genetically distinct gametes that can be produced is equal to 2ⁿ, where n is total number chromosomes pairs, a diploid cell with four chromosomes pairs can produce gametes of 16 genetically distinct gametes.

3. Although you will learn of mechanisms of mutation from your reading, you recognize that some traits carry the less frequent chromosomes. For example, both colour and eye colour. Why may some traits be inherited together?

That is because linked together and travel on the same chromosome. Therefore, they are not passed separately or together, and a heterozygous-dominant only passes either heterozygous chromosome down with all the other traits down the same chromosome, or with a dominant trait with the linked together.

4. Describe the alignment of chromosomes during prophase I, write the equation:

Homologous I homologous pairs and homologous chromosomes align together, called synapsis. This is a synapsis because it shows the pairing between sister and brother for the linked genetic variation.

5. How does recombination lead to chromosomes with new combinations? Describe two types of genetic variation that can result from recombination.
