

THE MOVEMENT FROM STANDARD TO OPTIONAL

Over 800 four-year colleges and universities have instituted "test score optional" policies in response to the research on standardized tests. There is no significant difference of college GPAs and graduation rates between those that submit standardized test scores and those that choose not to:

	High School GPA	College GPA	College Graduation %	SAT
NON-SUBMITTERS	3.35	2.83	63.9%	1041
SUBMITTERS	3.28	2.88	64.5%	1154

Non-submitters earned GPAs only 0.05 lower than submitters.

Non-submitters have graduation rates only 0.6% lower than submitters.

Currently, 571 organizations and 18,955 individuals have signed a National Resolution on High-Stakes Testing. They are calling on policymakers to reduce testing mandates and reexamine public school accountability in order to improve the quality of learning in the classroom and reduce the negative effects on students, teachers, and campuses.

The Myths of Standardized Tests Phillip Harris, Bruce M. Smith, Joan Harris, 2011-01-16 Pundits politicians and business leaders continually make claims for what standardized tests can do and those claims go largely unchallenged because they are in line with popular assumptions about what these tests can do what the scores mean and the psychology of human motivation But what most of what these opinion leaders say and the public believes about standardized testing just isn't so However few members of the general public not even concerned parents have the time or the background to keep up with the latest findings of testing experts psychometricians and researchers That's where The Myths of Standardized Tests comes in In simple accessible language Harris Smith and Harris spell out the assumptions underlying standardized tests and point out what's true about them and what's just plain mythical But they not only debunk common assumptions they propose better ways to judge the success of our schools They also offer readers suggestions for ways they can help reduce the burden of tests on their children Appendixes offer readers contact information and suggestions for actions they can take to become part of the solution to the problem of overusing and misusing standardized
