Pigs That Ate the Garden Peter D. Dwyer,2025-10-01 In The Pigs that Ate the Garden Peter D Dwyer examines the subsistence ecology of 109 Etolo people who live on the wet forested mountain slopes of Papua New Guinea Dwyer describes the community s method of deliberately placing pigs in gardens so that the pigs deplete the vegetation there He shows how this practice is actually the community s method of sending a message to itself that serves to resynchronize a switch from sweet potato gardening to sago starch processing The interrelationships of the different food producing activities of the Etolo gardening hunting tree crop cultivation etc are shown to have seasonal rhythms and these rhythms maximize the Etolo s use of food resources at appropriate times and areas Dwyer argues that the shape of Etolo ecology is ultimately driven by socio cultural rather than environmental forces and is set within a theoretical frame concerning processes of communication and change in open systems

The Fundamental Institution Megan Birk,2022-04-12 By the early 1900s the poor farm had become a ubiquitous part of America s social welfare system Megan Birk s history of this foundational but forgotten institution focuses on the connection between agriculture provisions for the disadvantaged and the daily realities of life at poor farms Conceived as an inexpensive way to provide care for the indigent poor farms in fact attracted wards that ranged from abused wives and the elderly to orphans the disabled and disaster victims Most people arrived unable rather than unwilling to work some because of physical problems others due to a lack of skills or because a changing labor market had left them behind Birk blends the personal stories of participants with institutional histories to reveal a loose knit system that provided a measure of care to everyone without an overarching philosophy of reform or rehabilitation In depth and innovative The Fundamental Institution offers an overdue portrait of rural social welfare in the United States
