

A photograph of an elderly man and a woman standing on a city street. The man is wearing a tan suit, a white shirt, a light tie, and a dark bowler hat. He is smiling and looking towards the camera. The woman is wearing a green Victorian-style dress with a high collar, long sleeves, and a full skirt. She is also wearing a matching green hat with a veil and is smiling. New Ideas For Old Concerns:

New Ideas for Old Concerns Derek Prinsley, 2014-10-15 Derek Prinsley graduated in Medicine in 1942. A chance contact he had with a pioneer in geriatric medicine started his own pioneering path in England, Australia and America where he has developed clear examples of the components of a geriatric medical service. At the University of Melbourne he was appointed to the first Chair of Geriatric Medicine and he has also been a consultant to the World Health Organisation. In America he was the Mitchell Distinguished Professor of Geriatric Medicine at the University of Texas Medical Branch where he organised acute medical care of older people. In retirement he suddenly became a full time carer of disability in the family. Growing effective support services are now available in the community and in homes. The spread of these good ideas is making the better care of older people in their own surroundings possible.

Economic Geography Andrew Wood, Susan Roberts, 2012-10-12 The turbulence of the current times has dramatically transformed the world's economic geographies. The scale and scope of such changes require urgent attention. With intellectual roots dating to the nineteenth century, economic geography has traditionally sought to examine the spatial distributions of economic activity and the principles that account for them. More recently, the field has turned its attention to a range of questions relating to globalization and its impact on different peoples and places, economic inequalities at different geographic scales, the development of the knowledge based economy and the relationship between economy and environment. Now more than ever, the changing fortunes of peoples and places demands our attention. Economic Geography provides a stimulating and innovative introduction to economic geography by establishing the substantive concerns of economic geographers, the methods deployed to study them, the key concepts and theories that animate the field and the major issues generating debate. This book is the first to address the diverse approaches to economic geography as well as the constantly shifting economic geographies on the ground. It encompasses traditional approaches albeit from a critical perspective while providing a thorough, accessible and engaging examination of the concerns, methods and approaches of the new economic geography. This unique introductory text covers the breadth of economic geography while engaging with a range of contemporary debates at the cutting edge of the field. Written in an accessible and lucid style, this book offers a thorough and systematic introductory survey. It is enhanced by pedagogical features throughout, including case studies dealing with topics ranging from the head office locations of the Fortune 500, Mexico's maquiladoras to China's investments in Southern Africa. This book also contains exercises based on the key concepts and annotated further reading and websites.
