Stephen Morrow, 2023-01-24 The beautiful game is big business Football leagues worldwide are being dominated by clubs which are becoming richer and more powerful Since the first edition of this book was published in 2003 much has changed in the industry However the central challenge remains how best football its leagues and clubs can navigate a path between the logic of the market and the logic of community social while also remaining focused on a sporting logic In this second edition author Stephen Morrow offers a critique of football s economic structure prevalent models of club ownership and governance and new approaches to regulation that have emerged The book also reflects on the Covid 19 pandemic and on ways in which it has illuminated many of the structural weaknesses inherent in football It also offers an insight into the woman s game and its financial development in some countries as well discussing issues such as football s response to environmental challenges Drawing on theory and new literature from across relevant academic disciplines this book seeks to make sense of the current challenges while also putting forward solutions as to how football can continue to harness and build on its social and community significance Football Fans, Their Information, The Web and The Personal Home Page Shant Narsesian, 2010-01-08 From the early days of the Internet to the present day the World Wide Web has developed into one of the world s largest information resources One of the first genres of web pages which was also one of the first information resources was the Personal Home Page PHP Over this same period of time professional football in England has created the world s richest league and by extension an abundance of football related PHPs This book examines the role of the PHP as an information resource using the subject area of professional football in England A holistic approach was taken so as to view the PHP in a broader context as one information resource amongst many including non PHPs and even offline information resources e.g. reference books. Within this study football fans were interviewed along with web authors surveys were carried out by distributing both online and offline questionnaires and additional research was also carried out online examining football related PHPs and online web collaborations. Results suggest that whilst there are many informational benefits to be found on PHPs such as plentiful unique information they have low levels of use amongst football fans. The study concludes by proposing an avenue to the maximisation of the informational benefit of PHPs through a blueprint for a type of communal football website called the Club Community Composite Page (CCCP). Overall several contributions are made to the field of information science most notably attaining an improved understanding of PHPs as unique and accurate information providers online and devising new research methods for PHP research. In particular the method of identification of PHPs developed here will be a useful tool for future researchers of PHPs. The contributions of this work are likely to be of value to researchers working in relevant sub fields of information science such as information seeking web genres grey literature and virtual communities.

But success has come at a cost unbalancing the English game to a profound and damaging degree. Football's stumbling response to COVID 19 and the European Super League disaster are just the most recent examples. It is estimated that more than two thirds of the country's 92 professional clubs are loss making payments to agents each year regularly total more than the combined income of all 44 clubs in Leagues 1 and 2 supporters have been squeezed to the limit.
