Law School Rankings, Faculty Scholarship, and Associate Deans for Faculty Research Richard Buckingham,2008 The authors contend that a boom in law school rankings has encouraged many U S law schools to take new measures to encourage and publicize faculty scholarship The establishment of associate deans for faculty research is one such measure The authors conducted a study to determine the number of law schools that have these dean level positions They argue that many law schools have established these positions as part of their efforts to improve their standing in the increasingly important rankings The authors begin with a historical overview of the original law school model and discuss how that model evolved over time They focus on how those changes led to a competitive law school market that helped lay the groundwork for U S News amp World Report and other law school rankings They then explore numerous alternative ranking methodologies and conclude with a study of ABA accredited law schools that have appointed associate deans for faculty research

Finally, a Use for the U.S. News Law School Rankings Noah Chauvin,2020 The U S News World Report law school rankings are highly influential among people applying to law school Nonetheless they are widely panned among the legal community for the often arbitrary criteria they use to distinguish between law schools In this essay I seek to rescue the rankings from this derision by proposing a novel use for them picking the winner of college football games against the spread I report the results of an experiment in which I applied this method and briefly discuss what these exciting new findings will mean for the future of the U S News rankings and their reputation in the legal community

First Thing We Do, Let's Deregulate All the Lawyers Clifford Winston,Robert W. Crandall,Vikram Maheshri,2011-08-01 Not many Americans think of the legal profession as a monopoly but it is Abraham Lincoln who practiced law for nearly twenty five years would likely not have been allowed to practice today Without a law degree from an American Bar Association sanctioned institution a would be lawyer is allowed to practice law in only a few states ABA regulations also prevent even licensed lawyers who work for firms that are not owned and managed by lawyers from providing legal services At the same time a slate of government policies has increased the demand for lawyers services Basic economics suggests that those entry barriers and restrictions combined with government induced demand for lawyers will continue to drive the price of legal services even higher Clifford Winston Robert Crandall and Vikram Maheshri argue that these increased costs cannot be economically justified They create significant social costs hamper innovation misallocate the nation s labor resources and create socially perverse incentives In the end attorneys support inefficient policies that preserve and enhance their own wealth to the detriment of the general population To fix this situation the authors propose a novel solution deregulation of the legal profession Lowering the barriers to entry will force lawyers to compete more intensely with each other and to face competition from nonlawyers and firms that are not owned and managed by lawyers The book provides a much needed analysis of why legal costs are so high and how they can be reduced without sacrificing the quality of legal services The

Lawyer Bubble Steven J Harper,2016-03-08 A noble profession is facing its defining moment From law schools to the prestigious firms that represent the pinnacle of a legal career a crisis is unfolding News headlines tell part of the story the growing oversupply of new lawyers widespread career dissatisfaction and spectacular implosions of pre eminent law firms Yet eager hordes of bright young people continue to step over each other as they seek jobs with high rates of depression life consuming hours and little assurance of financial stability The Great Recession has only worsened these trends but correction is possible and now imperative In The Lawyer Bubble Steven J Harper reveals how a culture of short term thinking has blinded some of the nation s finest minds to the long run implications of their actions Law school deans have ceded independent judgment to flawed U S News World Report rankings criteria in the quest to maximize immediate results Senior partners in the nation s large law firms have focused on current profits to enhance American Lawyer rankings and individual wealth at great cost to their institutions Yet wiser decisions being honest about the legal job market revisiting the financial incentives currently driving bad behavior eliminating the billable hour model and more can take the profession to a better place A devastating indictment of the greed shortsightedness and dishonesty that now permeate the legal profession this insider account is essential reading for anyone who wants to know how things went so wrong and how the profession can right itself once again Engines of Anxiety Wendy Nelson Espeland,Michael Sauder,Wendy Espeland,2016-05-09 Students and the public routinely consult various published college rankings to assess the quality of colleges and universities and easily compare different schools However many institutions have responded to the rankings in ways that benefit neither the schools nor their students In Engines of Anxiety sociologists Wendy Espeland and Michael Sauder delve deep into the mechanisms of law school rankings which have become a top priority within legal education Based on a wealth of observational data and over 200 in depth interviews with law students university deans and other administrators they show how the scramble for high rankings has affected the missions and practices of many law schools Engines of Anxiety tracks how rankings such as those published annually by the U S News World Report permeate every aspect of legal education beginning with the admissions process The authors find that prospective law students not only rely heavily on such rankings to evaluate school quality but also internalize rankings as expressions of their own abilities and flaws For example they often view rejections from first tier schools as a sign of personal failure The rankings also affect the decisions of admissions officers who try to balance admitting diverse classes with preserving the school's ranking which is dependent on factors such as the median LSAT score of the entering class Espeland and Sauder find that law schools face pressure to admit applicants with high test scores over lower scoring candidates who possess other favorable credentials Engines of Anxiety also reveals how rankings have influenced law schools career service departments Because graduates job placements play a major role in the rankings many institutions have shifted their career services resources toward tracking placements and away from counseling and network building In turn law firms regularly use school rankings to recruit and screen job candidates perpetuating a cycle in which highly ranked schools enjoy increasing prestige As a result the rankings create and reinforce a rigid hierarchy that penalizes lower tier schools that do not conform to the restrictive standards used in the rankings The authors show that as law schools compete to improve their rankings their programs become more homogenized and less accessible to non traditional students The ranking system is considered a valuable resource for learning about more than 200 law schools Yet Engines of Anxiety shows that the drive to increase a school's rankings has negative consequences for students educators and administrators and has implications for all educational programs that are quantified in similar ways
