

Population Distributions

How does population distribution affect the outcome?

Why?

Alaska voters were 100% white and were much more likely to be the largest vote for the District Three, yet white is a proportion of nearly 90% among people living in the state capital in Anchorage. How does being in one of the smallest states and having a large proportion of nearly 1 million live voters affect the likelihood that the 100% white rural voters are represented accordingly? What are the reasons that the large population voters represent the state and what effect does this representation have on the outcome?
