

Grade 7 Project Assessment Resource: Who Does Technology in the Working World?

- 1 Design your own idea (sketches of your new technology creation, making sure that your final creation is labeled). Select materials to create your design, ensuring the materials are easy to access. (Make a list of your materials and write out steps to create your design.)
- 2 Develop the manufacturing sequence and create your finished technology solution.
- 3 Present your research, design, drawings, and final creation to the class. You can choose to do this by putting all of your information together in a booklet or a PowerPoint presentation.
- 4 Evaluate your own design and presentation as well as a peer's design and presentation. Ask yourself these questions: What did I do well? What was I impressed with? What have you? How? What would I do differently next time? Ask the same questions for your peer's design and presentation.

Rubric

Originality/creativity	Is the idea original or an improvement on a past technology? Are the factors chosen innovative, relevant, and practical?
Requirements	Are the factors considered all the research questions? Was the student demonstrated through research before (sketches and design)? Are the factors chosen suitable and suitable materials?
Manufacture	Are the finished, PowerPoint presentation, sketches, and actual creation all presented, clear, without spelling errors, do they do the same for creation in that regard?
Efficiency	Are the factors selected research source and final that correctly, without spelling errors?
Investigate work (if not working technology)	Did the factors have worked in groups or pairs, how they worked together, especially, allowing everyone to feel heard? Was everyone participated and provided equal input?
Final presentation	Did the factors work properly, make up content with the class, present together with the guidelines, and did they do the same for creation in that regard?

Who does Technology in the Working World?

Project Outline

Questions to ask:

- Who 'does' technology in the working world?
- Who works with technology in their job?
- Who creates new technologies?
- What are some new technology ideas that people could use in their jobs?

Task: Design and create your own new technology that can be used in the working world. Your creation can be a product, a tool, or even something used on the computer.

Steps:

- 1 Investigate, find, use, and acknowledge information. How will you decide what to create? Ask family and friends around you what they think is needed? Do some research online to find out if you need this technology. Don't forget to create a bibliography questions to consider:
