The Case Study

"You see but you do not observe."
--Sherlock Holmes

Prompt: For project #2, you will write your own case study of an individual or small group that presents a problem you think recent research in neuroplasticity might effectively address. Your paper should do the following: 1) detail descriptions of the case subject and the problematic question it presents, including a brief overview of the standard response to this problem and its limitations; 2) analyze relevant developments, innovations or experiments in brain-based methods and concepts of brain plasticity that might help you formulate an alternative solution for your case's problem; and 3) make an original assertion about the implications of these approaches for this problem. While you may not be able to provide definitive results, your research should help you craft a well-reasoned argument supported with academic research.

Topic Selection: You are free to select a problem from the fields of education, music, sports, psychology, language acquisition, cultural studies, neurology, medicine, child development, disability studies or another discipline that you propose. You can find your individual or group from the media, your personal experiences or observations, your field of study, your hobbies or library research.

The Process: You will need to identify at least two primary sources that provide direct or firsthand evidence about your case. These can include eyewitness accounts, pieces of creative writing, literature, non-fiction, audio and video recordings, speeches, film, T.V. shows, interviews, fieldwork, essays, news reports and so on, i.e., wherever you gain an insightful view of the individual and the problem he or she presents. From these you can formulate a problematic question to guide your research. Consider the example of V.S. Ramachandran's argument about laughter, developed out of historical documents describing patients who died laughing. Since you are not conducting clinical observations, you need to distinguish early in your process between the sources that give you the information on your subject and that help you formulate a problematic question from the expertise that will help you analyze your subject and build an argument, your secondary sources.

Case studies of the use of agricultural biotechnologies to meet the needs of smallholders in developing countries Ruane, J., Mba, C., Boettcher, P., Koskela, J., Mair, G., Ramasamy, S., 2023-12-18 There are a wide range of biotechnologies available and many of them have been and are currently being used in many situations and sectors worldwide to solve the myriad problems that farmers are facing Documentation of the application of agricultural biotechnologies for smallholders is an important part of FAO's role in facilitating knowledge sharing regarding agricultural biotechnologies This document synthesizes a unique series of 15 case studies where agricultural biotechnologies were used to serve the needs of smallholders in developing countries The introduction chapter provides an overall background and objectives of the compilation of case studies The case studies cover different regions production systems species and underlying socioeconomic conditions in the crop livestock and aquaculture fisheries sectors The biotechnologies covered include some that are considered quite traditional such as artificial insemination as well as other more modern ones such as the use of DNA based diagnostics The case studies were prepared by scientists and researchers who were directly involved in the initiatives and the authors aimed to provide the background achievements obstacles challenges and lessons learned from each case study The final chapter of the document provides a summary overview of the challenges results and lessons learned from the 15 case studies

Encyclopedia of Case Study Research Albert J. Mills, Gabrielle Durepos, Elden Wiebe, 2009-10-21 Case study research has a long history within the natural sciences social sciences and humanities dating back to the early 1920s At first it was a useful way for researchers to make valid inferences from events outside the laboratory in ways consistent with the rigorous practices of investigation inside the lab Over time case study approaches garnered interest in multiple disciplines as scholars studied phenomena in context Despite widespread use case study research has received little attention among the literature on research strategies The Encyclopedia of Case Study Research provides a compendium on the important methodological issues in conducting case study research and explores both the strengths and weaknesses of different paradigmatic approaches These two volumes focus on the distinctive characteristics of case study research and its place within and alongside other research methodologies

Key Features Presents a definition of case study research that can be used in different fields of study Describes case study as a research strategy rather than as a single tool for decision making and inquiry Guides rather than dictates readers understanding and applications of case study research Includes a critical summary in each entry which raises additional matters for reflection Makes case study relevant to researchers at various stages of their careers across philosophic divides and throughout diverse disciplines
