Making Research Relevant Kelly L. Wester, Carrie A. Wachter Morris, 2024-11-05 Making Research Relevant is the ideal core textbook for master's level introduction to research methods courses in any mental health field. Accessible and user friendly, it is designed to help trainees and practitioners understand, connect, and apply research to clinical practice and day-to-day work with students and clients. The text covers foundational concepts such as research ethics, the consumption of research, and how to analyze data, as well as an additional 11 applied, evaluative, and outcome-based research methods that can be applied in practice. Easy-to-read conversational chapters are infused with case examples from diverse settings, paired with brief video lectures and a practice-based application section which provides vignettes and practice to guide application and visual components that demonstrate how research methods can benefit mental health practitioners in real-world scenarios.

Handbook on Participatory Action Research and Community Development

Stoecker, Randy, Falcón, Adrienne, 2022-04-08 This Handbook is a critical resource for carefully considering the possibilities and challenges of strategically integrating participatory action research (PAR) and community development (CD). Utilizing practical examples from diverse contexts across five continents, it looks at how communities are empowering themselves and bringing about systemic change.

Handbook of Research on Transformative and Innovative Pedagogies in Education Keengwe, Jared, 2022-05-13 Various pedagogies such as the use of digital learning in education have been used and researched for decades, but many schools have little to show for these initiatives. This contrasts starkly with technology-supported initiatives in other fields such as business and healthcare. Traditional pedagogies and general digital technology applications have yet to impact education in a significant way that transforms learning. A primary reason for this minimal impact on learning is that digital technologies have attempted to make traditional instructional processes more efficient rather than using a more appropriate paradigm for learning. As such, it is important to look at digital technology as a partner and use transformative applications to become partners with students, not teachers, to empower their learning process both in and out of school. The Handbook of Research on Transformative and Innovative Pedagogies in Education is a comprehensive reference that identifies and justifies the paradigm of transformative learning and pedagogies in education. It provides exemplars of existing transformative applications that, if used as partners to empower student learning, have the potential to dramatically engage students in a type of learning that better fits 21st-century learners. Covering topics such as gamification, project-based learning, and professional development, this major reference work is an essential resource for pre-service and in-service teachers, educational technologists, instructional designers, educational administration, and faculty researchers and academicians seeking pedagogical models that inspire students to learn meaningfully.

Connecting the Dots in Physiotherapy: Reframing the Role of the Profession in the Anthropocene Berta Paz-Lourido, Filip Maric, 2025-10-24 For many decades physiotherapy services were characterized by rehabilitative care carried out primarily in hospitals and rehabilitation centers Despite clinical educational and research advances in many parts of the world the imagination of policymakers and administrators in health services remains irremediably linked to large rooms with dozens of stretchers and rehabilitation equipment From those black and white photographs that are part of the honorable past of the profession where physiotherapy played and still plays a crucial role in caring for victims of wars or those with consequences of polio the discipline has moved on to a painting of a multitude of colors Looking toward the future in the Anthropocene requires more than ever to delve into the roots of the etymology of the term physiotherapy much more linked to interventions connected to nature than to closed clinical spaces as much related to health promotion and early intervention as to tertiary conservative and contributory procedures The use of physical agents in their curative preventive and palliative facets is much broader in physiotherapy than in other health disciplines But it is also crucial in public health in the co design of healthy environments in health promotion in schools or in global health interventions to mention just a few Despite all this research practice and innovative education in this area is often invisible and studies that support this breadth are still scarce The current challenges posed by planetary and human health require an alternative vision of health care more linked to healthy environments home neighborhood educational institutions workplace leisure spaces etc and a perspective of health interventions as more integrated with society and the environment The role of physiotherapy in this open space enjoys a growing and strong interest anchored in part as a response to the reductionism that a relevant part of clinical research grants to physiotherapy increased with the massive inclusion of technology as a therapeutic and educational mediator Incorporating planetary and population health as well as social and ecological perspectives into physiotherapy pedagogy would facilitate community engagement and sustainability in the field This open approach to physiotherapy allows not only to transform people s lives but also to bring the seemingly distant premises of planetary health to local action It is now urgently necessary to bring scientific research in this area to the surface open new debates and create spaces for future studies based on a more systemic relational and questioning conceptions of the discipline and its eco social role and responsibilities This Research Topic aims to highlight the role of physiotherapy in nature based health promotion interventions in public health initiatives global health and planetary health approaches and many more We will accept all methodologies and study designs including theoretical perspectives To contribute towards the development of this broad scope of physiotherapy this Research Topic calls for submissions on physiotherapy linked to Natural based interventions and health promotion Planetary health from a global local and local global perspective Global health ethics climate justice and human rights Environmental physiotherapy in all its approaches Urban planning and design green and blue cities zones co participation governance and public policies Healthy environments of all types from broad approaches such as healthy cities to other areas such as healthy schools universities workplaces leisure places Use of raw materials in physiotherapy sustainability and eco friendly strategies outdoors natural spaces and environmentally responsible interventions Community participation resilience climate change and health promotion Service learning and community engagement innovative approaches in physiotherapy education We would like to send thanks to the following organizations who are in support of this Research Topic and the articles published iApS 2030 Environmental Physiotherapy Association and European Network of Physiotherapy in Higher Education
