Economic Growth Niek Koning, 2017-04-21 Using a political economic approach supplemented with insights from human ecology this volume analyzes the long term dynamics of food security and economic growth The book begins by discussing the nature of preindustrial food crises and the changes that have occurred since the 19th century with the ascent of technical science and the fossil fuel revolution It explains how these changes improved living standards but that the realization of this improvement was usually dependent on government support for smallholder modernization The author sets out how the evolution of food security in different regions has been influenced by farm policy choices and how these choices were shaped by local societal characteristics international relations and changing configurations in metropolitan countries Separate chapters are devoted to the interaction of this evolution with debates on food security and economic growth and with international economic policies The final chapters highlight the new challenges for global food security that will arise as traditional sources of biomass production and the more easily extractable reserves of fossil biomass become depleted or can no longer be used Overall the book emphasizes the inadequacy of current explanations with regard to these challenges It explores what is needed to ensure a sustainable future and calls for a rethinking of these issues a necessary reflection in today's unstable global political situation Inclusive Texts in Elementary Classrooms Amy J. Provisional Cities Renata Tyszczyk, 2017-11-02 This book considers the provisional nature of cities in relation to the Anthropocene the proposed geological epoch of human induced changes to the Earth system It charts an environmental history of curfews admonitions and alarms about dwelling on Earth Provisional cities are explored as exemplary sites for thinking about living in this unsettled time Each chapter focuses on cities settlements or proxy urbanisations including past disaster zones remote outposts in the present and future urban fossils The book explores the dynamic changing and contradictory relationship between architecture and the global environmental crisis and looks at how to re position architectural and urban practice in relation to wider intellectual environmental political and cultural shifts The book argues that these rounder and richer accounts can better equip humanity to think through questions of vulnerability responsibility and opportunity that are presented by immense processes of planetary change These are cautionary tales for the Anthropocene Central to this project is the proposition that living with uncertainty requires that architecture is reframed

as a provisional practice This book would be beneficial to students and academics working in architecture geography planning and environmental humanities as well as professionals working to shape the future of cities
