The Formal Description and Parsing of Pictures Alan C. Shaw, 1968 The Domain of Images James Elkins, 2018-08-06 In the domain of visual images those of fine art form a tiny minority This original and brilliant book calls upon art historians to look beyond their traditional subjects painting drawing photography and printmaking to the vast array of nonart images including those from science technology commerce medicine music and archaeology Such images James Elkins asserts can be as rich and expressive as any canonical painting Using scores of illustrations as examples he proposes a radically new way of thinking about visual analysis one that relies on an object s own internal sense of organization Elkins begins by demonstrating the arbitrariness of current criteria used by art historians for selecting images for study He urges scholars to adopt instead the far broader criteria of the young field of image studies After analyzing the philosophic underpinnings of this interdisciplinary field he surveys the entire range of images from calligraphy to mathematical graphs and abstract painting Throughout Elkins blends philosophic analysis with historical detail to produce a startling new sense of such basic terms as pictures writing and notation

Pretty Pictures C. S. Tashiro, 2010-07-05 Theories of film have traditionally dealt with either narrative or industrial issues with the consequence that the physical content of the graphic frame has often been ignored or relegated to the sidelines By contrast C S Tashiro foregrounds the visual aspect of cinema in this book drawing on his experiences as a designer and filmmaker as well as on contemporary theory to show how production design can support or contradict narrative structure or exist in an entirely parallel realm of meaning Tashiro looks at cinematic production design from a broadly interdisciplinary perspective encompassing art and architecture theory audience reception narrative theory and phenomenology to arrive at a more encompassing definition of the process He builds his argument around studies of several prominent history films since design is central to historical representation and explores the most pertinent issues raised by the topic particularly commodity consumption In his conclusion he also offers possible solutions to some of the social problems raised by design

Image and Emotion in Voter Decisions Renita Coleman, Denis Wu, 2015-03-25 Drawing on a decade of their own research from the 2000 to 2012 U S presidential elections Renita Coleman and Denis Wu explore the image presentation of political candidates and its influence at both aggregate and individual levels When facing complex political decisions voters often rely on gut feelings and first impressions but then endeavor to come up with a rational reason to justify their actions Image and Emotion in Voter Decisions The Affect Agenda examines how and why voters make the decisions they do by examining the influence of the media's coverage of politicians' images Topics include the role of visual and verbal cues in communicating affective information the influence of demographics on affective agenda setting whether positive or negative tone is more powerful and the role of emotion in second level agenda setting Image and Emotion in Voter Decisions will challenge readers to think critically about political information processing and a new way of systematically thinking about agenda setting in elections United States Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Motion Pictures and Filmstrips: Education Section 1958, Selected and Available for Use Abroad United States Information Agency, 1959
