Experimental Political Science and the Study of Causality Rebecca B. Morton, Kenneth C. Williams, 2010-08-06
Increasingly political scientists use the term experiment or experimental to describe their empirical research. One of the primary reasons for doing so is the advantage of experiments in establishing causal inferences. In this book, Rebecca B. Morton and Kenneth C. Williams discuss in detail how experiments and experimental reasoning with observational data can help researchers determine causality. They explore how control and random assignment mechanisms work, examining both the Rubin causal model and the formal theory approaches to causality. They also cover general topics in experimentation such as the history of experimentation in political science, internal and external validity of experimental research, types of experiments, field, laboratory, virtual, and survey, and how to choose, recruit, and motivate subjects in experiments. They investigate ethical issues in experimentation, the process of securing approval from institutional review boards for human subject research, and the use of deception in experimentation.

Gender in the Political Science Classroom Ekaterina M. Levintova, Alison Kathryn Staudinger, 2018-07-12 A collection of studies examining the role of gender in teaching and learning in the traditionally male-dominated field of political science. Gender in the Political Science Classroom looks at the roles gender plays in teaching and learning in the traditionally male-dominated field of political science. The contributors to this collection bring a new perspective to investigations of gender issues in the political behavior literature and feminist pedagogy by uniting them with the Scholarship of Teaching and Learning (SoTL). The volume offers a balance between the theoretical and the practical and includes discussions of issues such as curriculum, class participation, service learning, doctoral dissertations, and professional placements. The contributors reveal the discipline of political science as a source of continuing gender based inequities but also as a potential site for transformative pedagogy and partnerships that are mindful of gender While the contributors focus on the discipline of political science their findings about gender in higher education are relevant to SoTL practitioners other social science disciplines and the academy at large A bold and compelling collection that asks important questions about the ways in which the teaching of Political Science reproduces gender inequities Aeron Haynie
