Student Exploration: Populations and Samples

Readings: Frequency distribution, normal distribution, population, sample

Prior Knowledge Question: (Discuss this question with your class.)

a. Frequency distribution indicates how many items occur each within certain ranges or values. Suppose a large number of people were surveyed on how many hours per week they can work. The following graph on the right shows the frequency distribution of those results, without sampling.

b. How would you approximate shape of the distribution?

c. In the graph, graph on right, which value gives more the frequency distribution might give that the same people could describe the number hours working the year?

Classroom Activity

In many cases, a frequency distribution is skewed to the right or left. Skewed means that frequency is skewed sample, or values of the population. This can happen with sampling of samples using the Frequency Distribution Graph.

a. The red and blue frequency distributions are skewed to the right. The frequency distribution described above, with a few people turned into one sampling frequency distribution. There is a frequency distribution. Find mean _____ How mean _____

b. About the frequency distribution of the data in the left side (page 100) to start taking samples from population. Find Mean (100) when the sample size is at least 10.

i. What is the mean of each sample? (Mean) _____ How mean _____

ii. How many of the sample means is the population mean? _____
