Book Review

New Publication Cultures in the Humanities: Exploring the Paradigm Shift, edited by Péter Davidházi. Amsterdam University Press, Amsterdam, 2014, 212 pages, € 79.00 (hardback), ISBN: 9789069645647.

In book "New Publication Cultures in the Humanities: Exploring the Paradigm Shift" Professor Péter Davidházi takes us to a fascinating journey of disruptive innovations that took place in the publishing world making published literature available and accessible worldwide through the Internet and digital networks. The digital archiving of historically significant materials including the textual documents and images has helped the several hundreds of researchers working in the areas of humanities. The people for generations had been using several kinds of materials for recording human memories and imaginations. However, many of them decayed or destroyed due to natural wear and tear. On the other hand, many epics were survived as those were not actually recorded on papers but have been living with peoples' memory for generations.

It is argued that all texts of centuries' old epics now can be stored on a single flash drive or pen drive. A whole library of religious texts, written till 21st century AD since the BC (Before Christ) era, can also be stored in a similar flash drive. So powerful is the digital media, in terms of compression of information for digital preservation, the domains of humanities get strengthened with the introduction of digital humanities. While the researchers and historians now can count several successful initiatives in digital humanities, digital publishing methods took years to evolve and are still evolving. This book attempts a brief introduction to the evolution of digital humanities and digital curation of published contents in a networked environment. The publishing process now transforms into a new edge when born digital publications dominate the world of academic publishing.

In the beginning, the editor Davidházi specifies "Publication cultures are systems of social practices held together by the need to publish texts and defined by the dominant paradigms of publishing". However, he explains, "The essays in the present volume are talking neither about paradigms of science, nor of any discipline in the humanities, but rather present paradigms of publication cultures. ... Consequently, what we mean by a paradigm is a set of concepts, habits, technologies, institutional norms and regulations, which together govern, directly or otherwise, all our procedures in publishing" (p. 9). The book is structured into three parts containing eleven chapters to discuss diverse aspects of academic publishing and digital humanities. These parts are namely (i) The Digital Enterprise: Views, Philosophical, Historical and Personal, (ii) Changing Models for Textual Editing in Electronic Publication, and (iii) Cutting Edge: New Means of Access, Evaluation and Funding.

In the chapter titled "Too Much of a Good Thing?" Luca Cadignola explains how historians get to access rare books through Google Books, JSTOR, Project Gutenberg and similar other services without travelling to one of the libraries that possessed the rare work. Some of these libraries are located far apart on another continent, which may hinder the readers to have physical access. The new technologies have empowered the scholars by bringing them close to the source documents they are researching on. While digital technologies bring older texts in their fingertips, the technological obsolescence is progressing in such fast pace making some of the earlier digitized documents unavailable. Nevertheless, new technologies emerge to enlarge public access to digitized and born-digital contents, significant for humanities and social sciences researchers. In this context, the chapter titled "The Future of Publications in the Humanities: Possible Impacts of Research Assessment" elaborates how impacts of digital humanities cannot be measured through bibliometric methods alone, but other parameters as mentioned in the San Francisco Declaration of Research Assessment, or DORA, can be applied for the SSH (social sciences and humanities) domains. Milen Zic Fuchs also argues that the Arts and Humanities Citation Index (A&HCI) has poor coverage for the humanities and thus has limited scope for impact assessment. However, bibliographic control of

Religion, Space, and the Atlantic World

John Corrigan, 2017-11-30 An interdisciplinary exploration of the influence of physical space in the study of religion While the concept of an Atlantic world has been central to the work of historians for decades the full implications of that spatial setting for the lives of religious people have received far less attention In Religion Space and the Atlantic World John Corrigan brings together research from geographers anthropologists literature scholars historians and religious studies specialists to explore some of the possibilities for and benefits of taking physical space more seriously in the study of religion Focusing on four domains that most readily reflect the importance of Atlantic world spaces for the shape and practice of religion texts design distance and civics these essays explore subjects as varied as the siting of churches on the Peruvian Camino Real the evolution of Hispanic cathedrals Methodist identity in nineteenth century Canada and Lutherans in early eighteenth century America Such essays illustrate both how the organization of space was driven by religious interests and how religion adapted to spatial ordering and reordering initiated by other cultural authorities The case studies include the erasure of Native American sacred spaces by missionaries serving as cartographers which contributed to a view of North America as a vast expanse of unmarked territory ripe for settlement Spanish explorers and missionaries reorganized indigenous built space to impress materially on people the surveillance power of Crown and Church The new environment and culture often transformed old institutions as in the reconception of the European cloister into a distinctly American space that offered autonomy and solidarity for religious women and served as a point of reference for social stability as convents assumed larger public roles in the outside community Ultimately even the ocean was reconceptualized as space itself rather than as a connector defined by the land masses that it touched requiring certain kinds of religious orientations to both space and time that differed markedly from those on land Collectively the contributors examine the locations and movement of people ideas texts institutions rituals power and status in and through space They argue that just as the mental organization of our activity in the world and our recall of events have much to do with our experience of space we should take seriously the degree to which that experience more broadly influences how we make sense of our lives
