

Strongly recommend that you prepare the following questions in advance:

Remember, we have about 100 different ways to construct a sample of 10000. Suppose you're using a very biased method (say, asking people at a party) that tends to favor the more social population of students. There's more going on here than the standard case with a population of nearly 5 million, but about 1 billion of 10000 individuals either are or aren't affected by the disease. What effect does the sample population's response have on the estimate? What effect does the population's response have on the estimate?
