BREATHE IN... BREATHE OUT

The mechanisms of respiration involve the contraction and relaxation of the muscles of respiration and the elastic properties of the lungs.

Mechanisms of Respiration

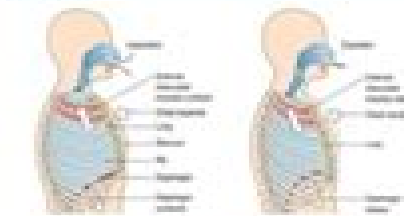

During normal quiet breathing the muscles involved are:

- Diaphragm
- Intercostal muscles
- External intercostal muscles
- Internal intercostal muscles

Inhalation - The muscles of respiration contract and utilize energy to do so, this is an active process as it uses energy. Inhalation last approximately 2 seconds.

Exhalation - The muscles of respiration relax and the elastic properties of the lungs and chest wall pull the rib cage upwards and outwards. As the rib cage expands, the pressure inside decreases, resulting in negative pressure, since the negative pressure is below atmospheric pressure, air is drawn in.

Inhalation - A passive process, doesn't use energy. Relaxation of the external intercostal muscles allows the rib cage to move down and in and the relaxation of the diaphragm reduces the size of the thoracic cavity. As the cavity decreases the pressure in the cavity increases, resulting in positive pressure, since it is greater than atmospheric pressure, air is forced out.

Factors Affecting Respiration

- Compliance - Ease of stretching of the connective tissues in the lungs with increased breathing effort.
- Elasticity - Measure of the distensibility. High compliance, lung walls expand easily. Low compliance, lung walls are resistant to expansion.
- Surface tension
- Viscosity
- Resistance
- Resistance of passage of air

Lung Volumes

- Residual Volume - the volume of air that remains in the lungs after a normal expiration.
- Tidal Volume - the volume of air that enters or leaves the lungs during a normal breathing cycle.
- Inspiratory Reserve Volume - the extra amount of air that can be inhaled into the lungs during a maximal inspiration.
- Expiratory Reserve Volume - the extra amount of air that can be expired during a maximal expiration.
- Vital Capacity - the maximum amount of air that can be expired during a maximal expiration.
- Functional Residual Capacity - the volume of air that remains in the lungs after a normal expiration.
- Total Lung Capacity - the maximum amount of air that can be inhaled into the lungs during a maximal inspiration.
