Given the importance of this sector and the growing demand for aquatic products it is vital that aquaculture in the region be both sustainable and productive. In this regard it is necessary to promote practices supporting the sustainability of the sector and maximize the sharing of technology and information in order to give producers all the necessary tools and information on aquaculture production. This manual aims to support this endeavour by presenting detailed information about the rearing practices of Black Sea turbot Scophthalmus maximus. It provides an introduction into the status of the turbot aquaculture sector as well as the necessary environmental conditions for optimal production. It also describes the production of live food for turbot larvae as well as the management of broodstock and the procedures for optimal larval and juvenile rearing. Finally with a view to capitalizing on and promoting innovative technologies it presents recent applications of biotechnologies to turbot production Moody's Complete Corporate Index, 1990-09 Thomas Register of American Manufacturers, 2003 Vols for 1970-71 includes manufacturers catalogs Report of the KEMRI/JICA Technical Cooperation in Research and Control of Infectious Diseases Keiichiro Akai, J.
