Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary middle-aged men. The subjects were 15 men, 40 to 50 years old, who were sedentary and had no cardiovascular disease. They were randomly assigned to a 10-week training program or a control group. The training program consisted of 30 minutes of aerobic exercise, 3 times a week, at 60% of the maximum HR. The control group did not exercise. The HR and HRR were measured at rest and during exercise at the beginning and at the end of the 10-week period. The results showed that the training program had a significant effect on the HR and HRR of the subjects. The HR and HRR were significantly lower at rest and during exercise at the end of the 10-week period compared to the beginning of the 10-week period. The control group did not show any significant changes in HR and HRR. The results of this study suggest that a 10-week training program can improve the cardiovascular fitness of sedentary middle-aged men.

- Day and night periods that are longer than the standard 24 hours occur most commonly with the use of artificial light or other light sources. To avoid this, there are two things the producer should do:
  - 1. Turn off the lights at the end of the day.
  - 2. Avoid excessive light intensity, the length of the day and the light spectrum (the color of the light) are important.
- The end of the day is the best time to change the light spectrum. The producer should be looking for the color of the light to be similar to the color of the sun at the end of the day. The producer should also be looking for the color of the light to be similar to the color of the sun at the end of the day.

- When a producer's price for the output rises or falls, it must adjust its output level accordingly. For example, if the price of the output rises, the producer will want to produce more of the output, and if the price falls, the producer will want to produce less of the output.
