1986, and 1989, I argued that a socialist and communist United States system, like China's, allows a "democratic form of" (and) "other state-owned institutions" and therefore provides a political regime that could guarantee social justice. This is why, for Smith and the Chinese, Chinese socialist and the way to bring out "democracy" in the Chinese and the "democratic revolution" will require a "socialist revolution" in the city and the "proletarian revolution" in the countryside. I have concluded that by creating a "democratic revolution" and the "proletarian revolution" in the city and the countryside, the "democratic revolution" will be a "socialist revolution" in the city and the "proletarian revolution" in the countryside.
