Energy storage is one of the most important enablers for the transformation to a sustainable energy supply with greater mobility. For vehicles but also for many stationary applications the batteries used for energy storage are very flexible but also have a rather limited lifetime compared to other storage principles. This Special Issue is a collection of articles that collectively address the following questions: What are the factors influencing the aging of different energy storage technologies? How can we extend the lifetime of storage systems? How can the aging of an energy storage be detected and predicted? When do we have to exchange the storage device? The articles cover lithium ion batteries, supercaps and flywheels.
