

Extra Testing Sheet - Physics 102B - Part II

Evidence for wave nature of light:

1. Interference fringes formation in the experiment of Young's double-slit interference.
2. Newton's experiment of dispersion of white light in triangular prism. A spot of white light entered from the lower surface of the prism.
3. Light diffraction through several materials is due to the fact that light is a transverse wave. As the wavelength is of the same order as the size of the slit, it diffracts and exhibits wave-like behavior.

Evidence for particle nature of light:

1. Photoelectric effect: Light is composed of particles called photons.
2. Without sufficient frequency of light, electrons are not ejected from a metal surface.
3. The rate at which electrons are ejected from a metal surface is proportional to the intensity of the incident light.
4. The experimental result is that the number of electrons ejected is proportional to the intensity of the incident light.

Without this photoelectric effect, it is not possible to explain the fact that the rate of ejection of electrons is proportional to the intensity of the incident light.
Light is a transverse wave. The rate of ejection of electrons is proportional to the intensity of the incident light.

5. The wave theory of light cannot explain the photoelectric effect.
