Abstract

The concept of performance contracting was mooted by the government of Kenya for effective and efficient achievement of set targets in the public service. All public institutions are expected to set performance targets and indicators for their achievement. The introduction of performance contracting in public universities is an effort to institute a framework of accountability and enhance service delivery in Kenya. Though difficult and challenging to implement, performance contracting leads to higher levels of performance through periodic monitoring and evaluation of performance targets. The main objective of carrying out this study was to determine the effectiveness of performance contracting and ways of improving its implementation and measurement in Kenyan public universities. The study was carried out in public universities and targeted staff in various cadres as respondents. The researchers employed descriptive survey design where questionnaires were administered. Stratified random sampling was used in a sample size of 80 respondents. The findings indicate that performance contracting has not been cascaded to all staff members, only a quarter of the staff had signed performance contracts. However, public universities have made moderate achievements in the entire performance contract indicators. The major challenge that affects the performance contracting process is the low level of coordination. The study recommends that the performance monitoring and evaluation unit be strengthened in order to carry out its mandate effectively and departmental performance contract coordinators be appointed. Also, a clear reward and sanctions scheme is put in place to inculcate a competitive culture in public universities. The study further recommends sensitization and training of university staff to demystify performance contracting. The process should be more inclusive by involving all stakeholders.

Performance Contracting and Service Delivery. Case of Moi University George Isaiah Otieno Wamactildah, 2014-12-24

Introduction of performance contracting improves service delivery in public sector institutions as was found out by this study. These findings go a long way to provide crucial policy inputs to public policy makers in governmental institutions in Africa. However, employee motivation components should be inculcated in the implementation of performance contracting for better results. It suggests that public institutions and especially academic and higher institutions of learning in Africa and governmental institutions should embrace performance contracting in order to improve service delivery to their clients.

The Limits of Institutional Reform in Development Matt Andrews, 2013-02-11. Developing countries commonly adopt reforms to improve their governments yet they usually fail to produce more functional and effective governments. This book explains such failure and proposes an approach to facilitate better reform results in developing country governments.

Performance Contracting Practices In Tertiary Institutions. A Case Of Teachers Training Colleges In Kenya

Simon Kipkeni, Julius Maiyo, Judah Ndiku, 2017-07-07. Studienarbeit aus dem Jahr 2016 im Fachbereich Pädagogik Allgemein, Sprache Deutsch. Abstract: Performance contracting was introduced in Kenya on 1st October 2004 in 16 largely commercial state corporations. This would see institutions freely negotiate performance agreements with the Government every year. Regular monitoring of the implementation of the contract agreed upon has been a vital aspect for its success. The institutions provide feedback by forwarding quarterly reports and taking corrective action where necessary. In 2007 the Government of Kenya published Kenya Vision 2030 as its long term strategy for achieving global competitiveness and prosperity. The country also aims at linking reforms and economic growth to actual quality of life of Kenyans, increase customer satisfaction with government services and to build trust in the government. Thus one of the foundations of the Kenya Vision 2030 linked to performance contracting is an efficient, motivated and well trained public service. Service delivery in Public Primary Teachers Training colleges has not improved much in spite of the introduction of Performance contracting. That was why this study seeks to determine performance contracting practices set by employees in order to improve service delivery in their institutions. The study employed descriptive survey design. The study population comprised teacher trainees, tutors, heads of department and sections and principals of the purposively selected Colleges. Purposive sampling, simple random sampling and stratified random sampling were used to identify the sample population. A total of 429 respondents formed the sample size representing 30% of the study population. The study revealed lack of capacity building of employees regarding performance contracting, ambiguity in the process and resistance by personnel to participate in the process, hindering the full success of the service delivery strategy. The results further reveal that the teaching staff Effectiveness of Performance Contracting
