Answer the following questions:

- 1.1 Describe the hydrologic cycle, components, and processes. The hydrologic cycle is a continuous cycle of water on Earth. It is driven by the sun's energy, which causes water to evaporate from the surface of the ocean and land. The water vapor then condenses into clouds, which release precipitation in the form of rain or snow. The water then flows back to the ocean or infiltrates the ground, where it can be stored for long periods of time. The cycle is a continuous process that is essential for life on Earth.
- 1.2 Define erosion, and the following erosion parts: runoff, channels, meanders, oxbow lakes, and floodplains. Erosion is the process of wearing away the Earth's surface. It is caused by the movement of water and wind. Runoff is the water that flows over the surface of the land. Channels are the paths that water flows through. Meanders are the curves in a river. Oxbow lakes are bodies of water that are cut off from a river. Floodplains are the areas of land that are flooded by a river.
- 1.3 Define drainage basin and divide. A drainage basin is the area of land that drains into a single body of water. A divide is the line that separates two drainage basins. It is the highest point of land between two bodies of water.
- 1.4 Define drainage patterns: dendritic, radial, rectangular, and trellis. Dendritic drainage patterns are the most common. They are characterized by a main channel with many smaller tributaries. Radial drainage patterns are found on volcanic cones. Rectangular drainage patterns are found in areas with jointed rock. Trellis drainage patterns are found in areas with folded rock.
- 1.5 Describe how erosion, transportation, and deposition are affected by grain size and velocity. Erosion is the process of wearing away the Earth's surface. Transportation is the movement of eroded material. Deposition is the process of dropping the material. Grain size and velocity are important factors in all three processes.
- 1.6 Define alluvial fans, braided rivers, and oxbow lakes. Alluvial fans are fans of sediment that accumulate at the base of a mountain. Braided rivers are rivers that have multiple channels. Oxbow lakes are bodies of water that are cut off from a river.
- 1.7 Describe how the Earth's surface is shaped by erosion, deposition, and tectonics. The Earth's surface is shaped by a variety of processes. Erosion is the process of wearing away the Earth's surface. Deposition is the process of dropping the material. Tectonics is the process of the Earth's crust moving.
- 1.8 Define the different types of sediment: clastic, organic, and biogenic. Clastic sediment is made of fragments of rock. Organic sediment is made of the remains of plants and animals. Biogenic sediment is made of the remains of organisms.
