Problem solving activities in post-editing and translation from scratch Jean Nitzke, 2019 Companies and organisations are increasingly using machine translation to improve efficiency and cost effectiveness and then edit the machine translated output to create a fluent text that adheres to given text conventions This procedure is known as post editing Translation and post editing can often be categorised as problem solving activities When the translation of a source text unit is not immediately obvious to the translator or in other words if there is a hurdle between the source item and the target item the translation process can be considered problematic Conversely if there is no hurdle between the source and target texts the translation process can be considered a task solving activity and not a problem solving activity This study investigates whether machine translated output influences problem solving effort in internet research syntax and other problem indicators and whether the effort can be linked to expertise A total of 24 translators twelve professionals and twelve semi professionals produced translations from scratch from English into German and monolingually post edited machine translation output for this study The study is part of the CRITT TPR DB database The translation and monolingual post editing sessions were recorded with an eye tracker and a keylogging program The participants were all given the same six texts two texts per task Different approaches were used to identify problematic translation units First internet research behaviour was considered as research is a distinct indicator of problematic translation units Then the focus was placed on syntactical structures in the MT output that do not adhere to the rules of the target language as I assumed that they would cause problems in the monolingual post editing tasks that would not occur in the translation from scratch task Finally problem indicators were identified via different parameters like Munit which indicates how often the participants created and modified one translation unit or the inefficiency InEff value of translation units i e the number of produced and deleted tokens divided by the final length of the translation Finally the study highlights how these parameters can be used to identify problems in the translation process data using mere keylogging data

Focus On: 100 Most Popular Sedans Wikipedia contributors, Focus On: 100 Most Popular Station Wagons Wikipedia contributors, Supporting People with Alcohol and Drug Problems Sarah Galvani, 2012 This book addresses the gap in social work education by providing a combination of research evidence policy frameworks and practical hints and tips for good social work practice for all those in children s and adults social work and social care settings who are working with people who use alcohol or other drugs Framing and Managing Lean Organizations in the New Economy Darina Lepadatu, Thomas Janoski, 2020-02-18 This book examines the dominance and significance of lean organizing in the international economy Scholars from each discipline see lean production as positive or negative the book blends theory with practice by sorting out these different academic views and revealing how lean is implemented in different ways The first part synthesizes academic research from a range of disciplines including engineering sociology and management to present the reader with an integrated understanding of the benefits and drawbacks of lean management The second part links this theory to practice with a set of case studies from companies like Apple Google Nike Toyota and Walmart that demonstrate how lean is implemented in a variety of settings The book concludes with three models explaining how Toyotism Nikefication with offshoring and Waltonism provide full or less complete models of lean production It clearly presents the positive and negative aspects of lean and insights into the culture of lean organizations With its rich interdisciplinary approach Framing and Managing Lean Organizations in the New Economy will benefit researchers and students across a range of classes from management sociology and public policy to engineering The UK Regional-National Economic Problem Philip McCann, 2016-03-10 In recent years the United Kingdom has become a more and more divided society with inequality between the regions as marked as it has ever been In a landmark analysis of the current state of Britain s regional development Philip McCann utilises current statistics examines historical trends and makes pertinent international comparisons to assess the state of the nation The UK Regional National Economic Problem brings attention to the highly centralised top down governance structure that the UK deploys and demonstrates that it is less than ideally placed to rectify these inequalities The North South divide in the UK has never been greater and the rising inequalities are evident in almost all aspects of the economy including productivity incomes employment status and wealth Whilst the traditional economic dominance of London and its hinterland has continued along with relative resilience in the South West of England and Scotland in contrast the Midlands the North of England Northern Ireland and Wales lag behind by most measures of prosperity This inequality is greatly limiting national economic performance and the fact that Britain has a below average standard of living by European and OECD terms has been ignored The UK's economic and governance inequality is unlikely to be fundamentally rebalanced by the current governance and connectivity trends although this definitive study suggests that some areas of improvement are possible if they are well implemented This pivotal analysis is essential reading for postgraduate students in economics and urban studies as well as researchers and policy makers in local and central government
