Psychology and Social Policy Prof. Dr. Bilal Semih Bozdemir, Moreover economic structures have direct implications on the labor market which subsequently affects individual decision making related to employment career pathways and lifestyle choices In an economy with high unemployment rates or limited job opportunities individuals may confront challenges in pursuing their preferred career trajectories To mitigate these challenges they may adjust their expectations or settle for roles that do not align with their aspirations Decreased economic mobility often results in a host of behavioral adjustments including risk aversion which diminishes the willingness to invest in education or entrepreneurial ventures Another salient aspect is the role of socio economic status which is deeply intertwined with economic structures Individuals from disadvantaged economic backgrounds may not only face constraints in accessing educational and professional opportunities but may also adopt behavioral patterns that reflect their economic realities For instance people in lower socio economic strata may prioritize immediate financial needs over long term investments such as saving or education Thus decision making becomes a reflection of their situational constraints rather than an outcome of purely rational choice In understanding the relationship between economic structures and individual decision making it is crucial to consider the impact of government policies and regulations Economic policy decisions including taxation welfare provisions and labor regulations create a framework that defines the choices available to individuals For instance policies that promote entrepreneurship and innovation can enhance individual agency by providing the necessary resources and support

Conversely restrictive policies may hinder individuals from pursuing certain opportunities or ambitions
