AIR INDUCTION SYSTEM - DESCRIPTION AND OPERATION

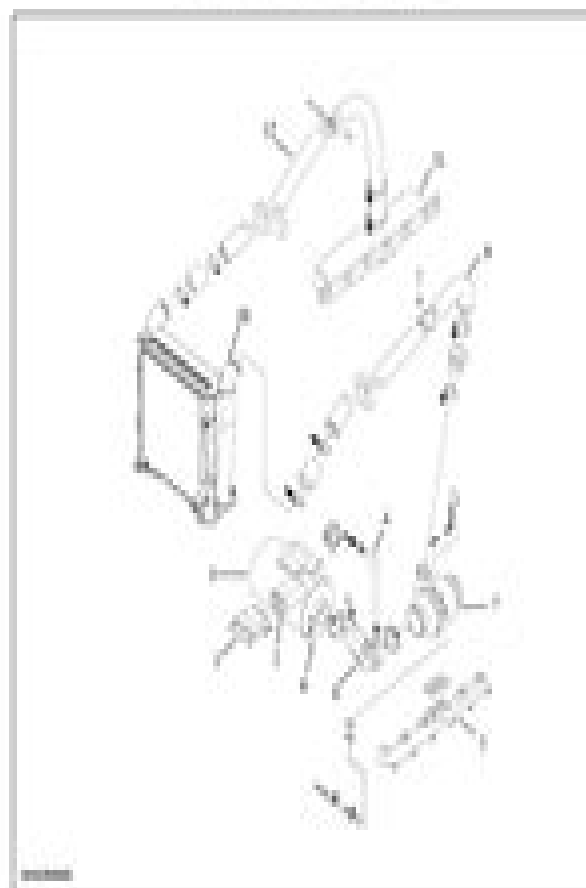

Introduction

The T400 air induction system is a forced induction system consisting of an air induction pump (1) a compressor (2) which is connected to the air filter housing (3). The air filter housing contains an oil separator (4) and an oil drain (5). The air filter housing (3) contains an oil separator (4) which separates the oil from the air flow. The air flow enters the air filter housing (3) through the turbocharger and engine cooling passage to the separator. The air filter housing is mounted to a metal frame that extends from the turbocharger to the rear engine cooling passage to the tube.

Once air is forced through the air filter, the mass air is drawn out of the air filter housing to the compressor side of the engine turbocharger (2) through the turbocharger intake tube (6).

The turbocharger (2) compresses the air and draws the air through the air filter (1). The air is then drawn from the compressor side of the air filter housing (3) with a series of bolts or nuts that provides better combustion in the engine cylinders.
