gifted running them in their own homes and taking their children significant distances to spend time with others that were also gifted Voluntary organisations were critical here as the network through which young people and adults encountered the term gifted and lived and created it relationally through interactions with one another Voluntary organisations looking to gain attention and visibility also critically shaped the idea that the gifted young were elites of the future central to answering challenges of economic decline global warfare or humanitarian aid The hopes placed on gifted children between the 1960s and the 1990s were often sky high yet many gifted young still felt that the community wasted their talents and did not support them This book then provides new perspectives on the tensions between elitism and equality in modern Britain It also offers vivid stories of optimism hope disappointment and criticism in which young people themselves play a central role
