Remote Online Language Assessment: Eliciting Discourse from Children and Adults Natalia Gagarina, Angel Chan, Wenchun Yang, 2024-08-20 Being able to collect valid data is crucial for empirical science disciplines such as linguistics developmental psycholinguistics clinical psycholinguistics and speech and hearing sciences In recent years there has been an increasing use of digital devices for remote language assessments such as online elicitation of language samples apps for eliciting expressive and productive lexical abilities and online questionnaires With the ongoing COVID 19 pandemic still affecting many lives globally there have been numerous disruptions of face to face in person language assessments leading many researchers to conduct their language assessments online Despite the necessity of remote language assessments and the convenience they may bring to both assessors and assesseees the potential merits limits and problems of remote testing have not yet been systematically explored and understood This timely Research Topic seeks contributions that mobilize new evidence and or insightful and nuanced discussions to address questions such as can we control online testing so that it is as good as face to face in person testing and if so how Do we have evaluative evidence of such practices and if so how robust is the evidence What adaptations and concerns can and cannot be accommodated at the present time What opportunities are offered by recent technological advances Are there certain conditions in which online testing works better or worse Last but not least how do differences between offline in person language assessments and online remote assessments affect the results of testing The current topic has two main foci the first deals with the assessment of conversational discourse in general and narrative discourse in particular in both children and young adults Communicative competence at the discourse level has been considered an essential and ecologically valid

component in language assessments of children and adults for three key reasons 1 this competence is crucial for an individual s everyday functioning and academic and social life 2 it provides information about an individual s socio cognitive and linguistic abilities and 3 it is a versatile test of language skills at the levels of content form use and their integration The second focus is on comparing the results elicited via in person assessments and remote online assessments This Research Topic welcomes empirical articles discussing new evidence perspective and opinion papers on issues at the conceptual methodological interface and methods articles presenting approaches that can offer opportunities for remote testing of developmental discourse supported by recent technological advances Potential themes may include but are not limited to comparisons of remote versus in person testing modes using a within participants research design learner variables such as age gender language status monolingual multilingual and clinical status typically developing children and adults children and adults with clinical conditions such as developmental language disorder autism spectrum disorder which may affect the efficacy of remote testing linguistic variables such as the use of referential and relational devices and mental state language which may be subject to more variations when being assessed remotely new methods that offer opportunities for the remote testing of developmental and adult discourse supported by recent technological advances articles addressing the same research question within developmental narrative discourse but using different i e either online or offline research methods

The United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea Kristina Siig,Birgit Feldtmann,Fenella M.W. Billing,2023-10-09 The 1982 United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea UNCLOS has for four decades been considered by many to be one of the most important legislative achievements of international law It is revered as a constitution of the oceans providing the legal framework for the governance of the oceans This volume explores how the UNCLOS is functioning in various complex settings how it adapts to new emerging developments as well as how it interacts with other regulation both within the law of the sea regime and outside Engaging in themes such as law and order at sea UNCLOS interaction with human rights and the role of private actors the book raises complex questions in the application understanding and enforcement of the convention and how it can be envisaged interpreted and used in a dynamic world The volume also raises methodological questions the answers to which may enhance the predictability and coherence of the law under UNCLOS and thus secure its role as the predominant and relevant system for legal governance at sea for many decades to come As a contribution to ensuring the future relevance of UNCLOS the book will be a valuable resource for scholars diplomats judges and other practitioners who are working with and interpreting the law of the sea and related issues of maritime law migration law human rights law and humanitarian law Chapter 4 of this book is freely available as a downloadable Open Access PDF at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial CC BY NC 4 0 license Educational Times ,1890
