Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week, 1000 kcal energy deficit diet on the body composition and physical performance of 10 male, sedentary, college students. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and a diet group. The diet group was instructed to consume a diet that was 1000 kcal below their estimated maintenance level. The control group was instructed to consume a diet that was equal to their estimated maintenance level. The diet group lost significantly more weight and body fat than the control group. The diet group also showed a significant improvement in physical performance compared to the control group. The results of this study suggest that a 10-week, 1000 kcal energy deficit diet can lead to significant improvements in body composition and physical performance in sedentary college students.

- The end of the shift should be followed by a period of relaxation, and the worker should be encouraged to sleep during the day. The worker should be encouraged to sleep during the day. The worker should be encouraged to sleep during the day.
