Geriatric Medicine Christine K. Cassel, Rosanne Leipzig, Harvey Jay Cohen, Eric B. Larson, Diane E. Meier, 2006-05-29

Since the publication of the third edition of Geriatric Medicine extraordinary advances have occurred in the science of aging and the potential for biomedical research to give us answers to many if not most of the age related disorders that threaten the quality of life in older years At the most basic level the successful mapping of the human genome was declared complete in the fall of 2000 Understanding the map of the human genome is as important as understanding the map of genomes of important laboratory species ranging from the microscopic worms and fruit flies used in most classic genetic studies to rodents such as laboratory mice and eventually to primates on which much of the research on the aging human brain is done The genetic maps of all of these species including our own does not answer clinical questions but it does open the door to dramatic rapid and efficient answers to questions about the genetic polymorphisms related to diseases in humans The telomerase story also unfolded since the third edition Telomerase is an enzyme responsible for maintaining the telomeres the redundant DNA portions at the end of chromosomes whose shortening seems to be linked directly to cell senescence apoptosis and the control over cell death which at the level of the individual cell seems to be linked to the decline of organ function and eventually aging and death within the organism

Vocational Rehabilitation Charles Gobelet, Franco

Franchignoni, 2006-01-02 It gives us great pleasure to write the preface to this book the second in the series of monographs produced by the European Academy of Rehabilitation Medicine No part of medicine no clinical intervention is complete without thinking about its effect on the person's life and the quality thereof One of the most powerful determinants of this is work a source not only of income but of satisfaction and a sense of purpose and worth The Academy founded in 1969 is composed of senior European doctors specialising in Rehabilitation and Physical Medicine It meets regularly to discuss matters of importance in the field including teaching research and ethical matters It recognises that the ability of the speciality and of related ones to decrease dependency and increase autonomy and quality of life needs to be better known Hence the production of these monographs They will help readers access a vast amount of literature on the practice of rehabilitation and its effectiveness They should be particularly useful to young doctors preparing for the European Boards certification in Physical and Rehabilitation Medicine as they are authoritative and cover subjects in depth Topics covered in the series range from basic sciences to the most applied areas
