Question: What happens when two tectonic plates meet?

1. Collision - Boundaries where two plates move towards each other. When they meet, they can push together, creating a mountain range. This is called a collision boundary. When they pull apart, they create a gap, which is called a divergent boundary.

How would you describe the motion of plates in a collision zone?

The plates are pushing together and creating the land to rise up - this is called a mountain range.

2. Sliding - One plate moves past the other. Boundaries where plates slide past each other are called transform boundaries. These are called sliding - which way the plate moves.

Divergent movement

3. Spreading - Two plates move apart. Boundaries where plates move apart are called divergent boundaries. These are called spreading - which way the plate moves.

Look at the boundaries between the plates on the map.
