

Writing Observation Reports

In an observation report, you visit a location (place) and write down all of the things you see, hear, smell, and feel. (In this case, observation means “gathering information by noting facts and details.”)

Writers pay careful attention to everything around them. They seem to see things that other people miss, and they jot down interesting details on their phones or tablets or in notebooks. These details give them ideas for their writing. Writing observation reports will help you see the world in the same way that good writers see it.

What's Ahead

The models and guidelines in this chapter show you how to write an observation report. Remember to choose words that show readers exactly what you observe.

Clinical Guide to Effective Psychological Assessment and Report Writing Rosemary Flanagan, 2024-09-17

The book examines the preparation and presentation of psychological data reports for various stakeholders e.g. teachers, parents, caregivers. It details strategies for clear and effective prose and visuals that reach beyond the narrative and emphasize data integration. Chapters are organized around specific themes contained in the overall report and its sections e.g. cognitive achievement, social/emotional/personality, as well as the process of data reporting, its description, and eventual communication to consumers. The volume addresses the rationale for and considerations important to carrying out this mission, including reporting and explaining data obtained from English language learners (ELLs). It provides examples of sample data sets detailing how to apply and illustrate these principles and reflect contemporary data interpretation. In addition, the book provides checklists as well as appendices and tables that should be considered when preparing reports. The book discusses the processes and mechanics of integrating data within and across sections of reports, thereby providing alternatives to strictly boilerplate reports as well as practical recommendations that can be readily implemented to benefit students. Key areas of coverage include: Preparing psychological reports for all stakeholders; Data presentations for lay audiences; Contemporary data reporting not driven by a boilerplate; Illustrations of data integration and customized prose; Generating intervention recommendations for students using descriptive data; Tailoring the writing process to create defensible reports for school clinical and neuropsychological referrals. This volume is an essential resource for researchers, professors, graduate students as well as clinicians, therapists, and other professionals in developmental, clinical, child, and school psychology, educational assessment, testing, and evaluation, social work, public health, and all interrelated disciplines.
